THE MACKINAW SALE.

Its Affairs Appear to be Very Badly Mixed.

The Middle Division Gobbled by the Income Bondholders—The Northern Division of No Use to the C., H. & D.

The sale of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw railroad Tuesday, appears to be badly mixed. The C., H. & D., it was thought would purchase the entire line but the income bondholders, represented by Gen. A. V. Rice and G. L. Marble, stepped in and gobbled up the middle or Van Wert division.

They paid for it the sum of $1,642,000. The Herald has the following regarding it:

Gloom lies over the camp of the Reorganization Committee of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw railroad company, which is in the hands of Receiver Walston H. Brown, of this city, and which was sold on Tuesday under foreclosure.

It had been nicely arranged by the committee that after the road was bought in it should be leased to the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, which was to guarantee, by indorsement, principal and interest of $4,800,000 fifty year four per cent. gold bonds.

Opposition to this scheme, however, had been developed among the holders of $137,000 second income mortgage bonds on the Cincinnati, Van Wert and Michigan division and they "lay low" until the day of the sale.

Mr. Fred Brown, son of the receiver, attended the sale as representative of the reorganization committee. The property was put up in two divisions. The northern division was bought by Mr. Brown. When the central division was offered Mr. Brown offered to sell the property to the income bondholders for $1,367,000, the amount of the bonds with accrued interest, but this was refused.

Then he offered to buy for $1,362,000. Thereupon Gen. A. V. Rice, for the bondholders, bid $1,642,000.

"It was an absurd bid," said Mr. Brown to me yesterday, "and of course I would not bid more. The division was sold and $15,000 was paid down.

"The object of the bid, I believe, was to compel me to secure the property at an extravagant price and thus create a fictitious value for the bonds held by the bidders. They will not pay it and they will only lose their money. Judge Ricks will be asked to give them 20 days to pay the forfeit. No one believes they can pay, and the road must be sold again."

Securities of the road held by the reorganization committee amount to $2,095,000; of the Van Wert division, $1,164,000, besides $125,300 out of $363,000 of the Van Wert division income second mortrage bonds; $50,463 preferred bonds and $94,763 common stock.

The New York correspondent of the Plain Dealer says:

"Mr. Brown would not say whether it was true, as reported, that Calvin S. Brice could tell a good deal about the transaction if he wanted to. Whether Col. Brice had anything to do with the affair or not, he seems to have been well posted as to what was going on. But he would neither affirm nor deny it yesterday. It is natural that the participants should deny any connection with the trick after it has proved a failure. The story is that Col. Brice was exceedingly anxious to get the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw road as an outlet for the Lake Erie & Western to the northwest. At any rate he wanted to keep the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton from getting it. This has been known for months past. The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw afforded excellent opportunities for financiering and it might be made a paying investment for the managers, if not for the stockholders. But the scheme, whatever it was, has failed, the reorganization committee says, and it is only a question of time before the road is placed on its feet again.

SOLDIERS AT HAND.

Fears of Trouble at the Parnell Funeral.

Bitter Feeling Against the Dead Man's Opponents.

The Scenes in Kilkenny May Occur in Dublin.

Russian Jews Sent to Siberia.

Italy and Russia Have Their Heads Together and Will Not Permit a Repetition of the Mitylene Incident.

London, Oct. 10.—The apprehension of trouble at the funeral of Parnell to-morrow is so serious that the troops in Dublin have been strengthened by order of the lord lieutenant.

The soldiers will remain under arms without interfering with the celebration unless summoned to do so by the lawful authorities, and then only in extremity.

The feeling for Parnell, and against his opponents runs very high, not only in Dublin, but throughout Ireland, and the chief apprehension seems to be that the delegations from other places may see fit to attack and wreck the offices of the newspapers that have been harsh in their treatment of Parnell when he was alive, and scarcely less so since his death.

A Dublin letter says that the Irish heirarchy is nonplussed by the situation and that the bishops, or a majority of them, would prefer to let recent matters be forgotten and Irish affairs go on as they were going before the struggle begun that ended in the death of Parnell.

The heirarchy and Timothy Healy made the warfare against Parnell so personal that they were really at a loss to know what to say now that he is gone.

The people were appealed to from the pulpit not to follow Parnell because he had been implicated in the divorce scandal.

Said a Parnellite member of parliament this morning: "Now that the divorce scandal is out of the way new argument will have to be framed, if what they call Parnellism and we call Nationalism is to be crushed.

"At present the clergy is the supreme ruler on the McCarthy side, but their supremacy is based on the moral argument. But for that argument and the confidence of a large proportion of the people in its presentation by the clergy, Parnell would have held a majority of the people everywhere, and I do not believe his name will be any the less potent for the cause now that he is dead, than when he was alive.

"The so-called Parnellites, therefore, represent a majority of the Irish people and should wait for, instead of hastening, to offer terms of reunion."

Excitement at Fever Heat.

Yesterday as John Dillon was walking along Sackville street (the principal thoroughfare of Dublin) he was stopped by a crowd of roughs who saluted him with cries of: "You are a murderer!" "There is Dillon, the murderer!" and other insulting and threatening exclamations.

The excitement in the city became intense as the hour for the arrival of the remains of Parnell draws nigh. The situation is already extremely critical, and, notwithstanding the protestations of the police that they are prepared and able to preserve the peace, the orderly element of the people are apprehensive that serious trouble will occur to-morrow before the funeral cortege reaches Glasnevin cemetery.

The Freeman's Journal to-day announces that Messrs. Dillon and Sexton have been forced to absent themselves because of repeated threats that their presence at the funeral would result in violence to them, and be the cause of tumult. The Journal says that if violence does occur to-morrow the Irish people will hold United Ireland (organ of the Parnellites) responsible for having incited it.

Jews Sent to Siberia.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that several Jewish artisans who were found to have returned to Moscow, after having been transported from that city to the pale of Jewish settlement, were arrested and flogged with great severity, and then sent to Siberia to work on the railway now being constructed. There is no relaxation anywhere, and especially in Moscow, in the treatment of the Jewish population, and as foreign appeals in their behalf, not the slightest attention is given by the authorities.

The Sultan is Firm.

The sultan, says a Constantinople dispatch, has granted a pension to the former grand vizier Kiamil, and a palace in Asia Minor, where the dismissed official must live the greater portion of the year.

While the sultan thus bestows favors on his former head servant, it is said that he has no intention of restoring him to high official responsibility, as he believes that Kiamil failed to handle the Egyptian question with the tact and energy that it called for, while at the same time he was on too familiar personal terms with the British and German ambassadors.

Italy and the Dardanelles.

A Rome dispatch says a squadron of the Italian fleet has started for the Levant under sealed orders. It is thought that possibly a repetition of the Sigri affair is contemplated, as a warning on the part of Italy that she is ready to take part in any struggle over the Dardanelles.

The Italians not content with the splendid navy they already possess, are adding to their financial troubles by the costly additions they are making to the navy with a view of coming as near as they can to France in naval power.

Italy and Russia.

The Paris correspondent of the Times telegraphs that paper, saying that the Russian ambassador at Rome is arranging to bring about an interview between Marquis Di Rudini, the Italian premier, and M. De Giers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs. In the proposed interview it will be the object of M. De Giers to induce the Italian government to modify the policy inaugurated and pursued by Signor Crispi while that gentleman was premier of Italy, and to agree to go no further with Germany and Austria than the terms of the triple alliance treaty require.

TROUBLE IN HONDURAS.

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—Advices from Panama are to the effect that government affairs in British Honduras are in a troublous condition. After a protracted struggle between the government and the popular element of the legislature, the representatives vacated their seats in a body. Matters have been placed before the British government for settlement.

CASE POSTPONED.

Boston, Oct. 10.—Col. Solomon Lincoln, counsel for Edward F. Searles, says the postponement of the Searles will case was made on request of contestants' counsel and that there is no foundation whatever for the rumor that Mr. Searles has offered to compromise.

DIED FROM HIS WOUNDS.

A Shooting Scrape in Georgia Which Resulted Fatally.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 10.—A. S. Dorming, one of the leading farmers of Irwin county, died at his home Thursday, the result of an impromptu duel fought on Sunday. For some time ill feeling had existed between Mr. W. R. Fussell and Mr. Dorming, which grew out of the recent murder, by masked men, of the deputy sheriff of Irwin county.

Dorming had charged that Fussell was one of the assassins. On Sunday Fussell was in attendance at the neighborhood Methodist church, of which he was a class leader. In the midst of the services Dorming drove up in his buggy. Fussell went out to meet him. The two men talked about five minutes, when simultaneously shooting began, breaking up the congregation.

Fussell was shot in the arm and side. Dorming received a bullet under the right eye, this bullet going almost entirely through his head, resulting in his death Thursday. Fussell's wound is believed to be fatal.

FOSTORIA FACTS.

A Business Difficulty Finds its Way into Court.

Fostoria, O., Oct. 10.—A few days since T. R. Beggs sold his half of a plumbing establishment to his partner, Geo. Armbruster, and then went to Chicago. Upon his return he went to his former partner and demanded of him the key to the establishment, which, of cotse, was denied him. Last night some one broke into the shop and cleaned out the ranch," taking all tools, gas fittings, and even the books, and carried them away in a wagon, the tracks of which could be seen. As suspicion pointed to Beggs, he was put under arrest, and then acknowledged he had done the deed, but claimed that half the tools belong to him. He informed the authorities where the goods were secreted, and then went to jail in default of $100 bail. He will have a hearing on Saturday.

MELBOURNE'S RAIN.

He May Be Able to Bunco the People Out of Some Money.

Goodland, Ks., Oct. 10.—Frank Melbourne, the Australian rain-maker, closed his experiments at this place yesterday. Melbourne explained that the cold nights counteracted all the work he did during the day. Since his experimenting began northwestern Kansas has had more rain than has ever fallen here before, and the people are satisfied with his explanation.

Melbourne was asked last night to submit a proposition for watering the 40 counties in western Kansas, and he offered to do it for 10 cents for each cultivated acre. There were this year 2,000,000 acres under cultivation in the counties which it is proposed to water.

QUAY MUST BE DOWNED.

Republicans Begin to See the Approaching Storm.

A Whole State Organized Against Him.

Under No Circumstances Can the Great Manipulator be Allowed to Return to the Senate.

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—The movement among the independent republicans of Pennsylvania to prevent the re-election of Senator Quay to the United States senate, which was begun in this city in June last, has so far progressed that a call has been issued for a meeting of the leading spirits among the anti-Quay men in this city.

In June last an appeal, addressed to the citizens of Pennsylvania, was published over the signatures of 150 prominent republicans, protesting against the continued leadership of Senator Quay.

It stated that the republican machine, bossed by Quay, as well as his lieutenants, was corrupt and in strong contrast to the rank and file of the party.

It demanded the retirement of Quay, not only from the positon as the party leader, but also from the senate, and concluded with the statement "that if the appeal should excite a popular response, ways and means could readily be devised for organized effort at a later date."

The gentlemen in charge of the movement declare that the response to the appeal has been sufficiently encouraging to warrant them in going to work at once to organize their friends in every republican legislative district in the state, with a view of defeating Quay.

The appeal now bears the signatures of 322 signers, covering 30 counties outside of Philadelphia, and these gentlemen have been invited to a meeting to be held on Wednesday afternoon next at the old board of trade rooms, in the Mercantile library building.

The call has been issued by a provisional committee, which comprises the following well known gentlemen: Herbert Welsh, chairman; Francis R. Reeves, Walter Wood, John Rodman Paul, Geo. E. Mapes, George Strawbridge, M. D., Finley Acker, Charles Richardson and Hampton L. Carson. The signers are invited to form a league "which shall carry into effect the views expressed in the protest, and which, by judicious and right methods, shall seek to free the republican party in this state from Mr. Quay's supremacy."

SUGAR CROP SHORT.

The American Product Does Not Pan Out.

New Orleans, Oct. 10.—The first Louisiana sugar produced under the new bounty law reached here yesterday. It is now apparent that the sugar crop will not be as large as expected a few months ago in consequence of the drouth in August and September, and, notwithstanding an increase of 12 per cent. in the acreage, it will fall below that of last year.

The planters called for a bounty of $11,000,000.

The indications now are that bounty will not exceed $6,800,000.

NAVY APPOINTMENTS.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The president has made the following appointments in the United States navy:

Francis J. Higginson, captain; Andrew Dunlap, lieutenant-commander; Benjamin Tappan, lieutenant; Ambrose J. Clark, pay director; J. Rufus Tryon, medical inspector; Henry M. Wells, medical inspector; James E. Cann, paymaster; Lloyd B. Baldwin, surgeon; Ernest Norfleet, surgeon.

EXCITEMENT IN CORK.

Posters Charging That Parnell Was Murdered.

McCarthyites and United Ireland Denounced in Bitter Terms from the Bill Boards.

Cork, Oct. 10.—Large sensational posters have been placarded on walls, fences and other places throughout the city.

These posters have deep mourning borders and bear in their center the words: "Murdered to please Englishmen," together with verses denouncing the McCarthyites and the United Ireland; declaring that Parnell was murdered and imploring the people to remain tranquil. The posters are stirring up much excitement.

CLOSED THEIR DOORS.

One of the Oldest Concerns in Rochester Fall.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 10.—A. S. Mann and Co., dry goods dealers, have failed for $100,000. The firm was one of the oldest in the city, and the failure is a great surprise. H. B. Claflin is the largest preferred creditor, $20,000. W. B. M. Jordan, Claflin's financial man, is assignee.

The business is one of the oldest in the city, having been established by Brittin and Wilder in 1818. The firm consisted of A. S. Mann and his son, E. B. Mann. The failure is directly due to inability to realize upon real estate.

Mr. Mann had invested largely in western real estate and felt that the investment would be an excellent one. Depreciation in values make it impossible to realize.

The firm was rated at from $125,000 to $200,000 in the commercial agencies. Mr. Mann has turned over all his property, including his residence, to his creditors.

He Continues to Come.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 10.—Customs returns show a steadily increasing influx of Chinese into British Columbia from China, with every indication that such a state of affairs will continue until some understanding is arrived at between Canada and the United States, by which the dominion will co-operate with the United States to prevent Chinamen from crossing the border from Canada into the United States.

UNBALANCED HER MIND.

Parnell's Mother Completely Prostrated.

Feared by Her Friends That the Death of Her Son Will Prove More of a Strain Than She Can Stand.

Bordentown, N. J., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Parnell has been prostrated ever since Wednesday afternoon. Her friends fear that the shock of her son's death has been too great for her and that she may lose her mental balance.

She has been confined to her bed, her old servitor, Edward Slevin, and her friend, Mrs. W. J. Knoud, of New York, being in constant attendance. This morning at 8 o'clock the watchers were startled.

Mrs. Parnell left her bed and burst into the dining room, her eyes ablaze and her features haggard.

She was greatly excited and declared she would go at once to New York and thence sail for Ireland to see her beloved son. Sobs and hysterical laughter shook her frame and the attendants were greatly frightened and sent for a physician.

BELGIUM NEWS.

Brussels, Oct. 10.—At a public meeting to-day the burgomaster of this city said he was authorized to deny the report that a treaty had been concluded between Germany and Belgium.

The burgomaster also declared that he felt confident that neighborly feeling between France and Belgium in Europe and also in the African territories would be preserved.

MINE EXPLOSION.

Rich Hill, Mo., Oct. 10.—By an explosion in mine No. 7 of the Keith and Perry Coal Mining company Wednesday night, Riley Metz was killed and Amos Alger seriously injured. The damage to property was about $5,000. The explosion is supposed to have resulted from the firing of shots of blasting powder put in by the miners to loosen the coal.

INDIAN SCHOOLS.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Dr. Dorchester, the superintendent of Indian scools, in his report to the commissioner of Indian affairs, says that he had made 105 visits to schools located in 24 different agencies. In giving his estimate of the progress of the Christianizing the Indians in the Dakotas Dr. Dorchester says from church authorities he learned that the Roman Catholic church Indian population in these two states is 4,470, while from 10,500 to 11,000 are of other denominations.

POLITICS IN THE SOUTH.

A Georgian Relates the Condition of Affairs.

The People for Low Tariff and Free Coinage—Mr. Crisp's Candidacy.

Mr. Claude N. Bennett, who is in Ohio looking over the political situation for his paper, the Atlanta Journal, is in the city. He came to Ohio for the express purpose of attending the joint debate at Ada, and is surprised at the sort of campaigns we have in Ohio.

Mr. Bennett talked for afew moments this morning with a Bee on Georgia politics, and said some very interesting things:

"The Georgia farmers alliance will probably number 60,000, which is about one-third of the total vote of the state. They nominated last fall candidates in several of the counties, and at the same time presented these candidates to the democratic conventions where they were endorsed. So that notwithstanding the fact that the alliance selected several congressmen from the state of Georgia, they were also elected by the democrats. Not a singles straight-out independent farmers alliance man was in the field."

"What do Georgia people think of the tariff?"

"We are all low tariff men down there. Nobody had the hardihood to come into the state and make high tariff speeches, although a prominent Georgia manufacturer has attempted it a few times. We think that the products of our state should be sold in the open markets of the world, and that our ultimate prosperity depends largely upon freer trade relations."

"How about silver?"

"The democratic party has not spoken on this line. The alliance men—and they are democrats—are strongly for free coinage, and a man who is not in line with this policy would have considerable difficulty in getting the vote of the state. The sub-alliances throughout the commonwealth all favor free coinage, which they think means much more money in circulation. These sub-alliances are also pledged to the Ocala platform and the sub-treasury plan, which means the loaning of money to the people at a low rate of interest, secured by mortgages on farm lands and on imperishable farm products. The president of the Georgia alliance, Mr. Livingstone, who was elected to congress last fall from the Atlanta district, has been accused of flirting with the people's party, but he recently stated in a speech that he was a democrat, and would abide the action of the national democratic convention."

"How do the people regard Crisp's candidacy?"

"They generally favor it. Crisp is a very able and popular man. It is supposed and I believe conceded that he will receive the support of all the Georgia alliance congressmen except Watson, of the Tenth district, whose vote will go to the candidate who comes most nearly to indorsing the Ocala platform. As to this platform, Crisp, Mills and Springer occupy about the same position."

Mr. Bennet is well pleased with his trip through Ohio so far, and is of the opinion that Gov. Campbell has the best of the fight with the high tax champion, Major McKinley.

MRS. DR. WILLARD DEAD.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 10.—(Special)—Intelligence has been received here of the death at 10 o'clock last night of the aged wife of Rev. Dr. G. W. Willard, at Collegeville, Pa., where she is president of Ursinus college.

She was the former president of Heidelberg university here. The funeral will occur at Xenia to-morrow.

SIX THOUSAND FARMERS

Listen to Governor Campbell's Speech.

A Characteristic Address and is Cheered to the Echo.

The Wool Question Is the One Topic of Great Interest to the Men Who Live on Ohio Farms.

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 10.—(Special)—Gov. Campbell addressed 6,000 farmers and citizens at the fair grounds here yesterday, and the meeting was one of the most pleasant he has had this year.

The governor was driven to the fair ground shortly after 1 o'clock, escorted by the Upper Sandusky and Nevada bands. A stand for his accommodation had been erected just in front of the amphitheater, where he was enabled to talk in all directions. The grand stand was packed with people and they stood in front of it packed closely together for more than a hundred feet back from it.

The governor was introduced by Congressman Dodge Ho who made a very happy speech.

"Gov. Campbell" said he, "has been true to every trust that has been reposed in him by the people of this great state. During the time he has administered the affairs of the state, he has never for a single moment forgotten the duties imposed upon him by the people. He has not been false to this trust in a single instance. He has been a faithful executive and he ought to be honored by a re-election. He stands in this campaign for the great cause of the people, and his victory ought to be a triumphal one."

When Governor Campbell arose he was greeted by a storm of applause. When it had died away the governor said:

"I am glad to meet for the first time in my life the honest farmers of Wyandot county. You have a beautiful little city here and a splendid county, and best of all, you have plenty of democrats. (Applause.)

"I am glad to meet the farmers because I am a farmer myself. (Laughter.) I own a farm down in Butler county where we also raise democrats. (Laughter.) I am not so good a farmer however as I am a governor, and that is why I think I ought to stay where I am. (Laughter.) I raise on my farm unprotected hogs. (Laughter.) I was never very much of a farmer, but I never was confounded fool enough to quit raising unprotected hogs and begin raising protected sheep. (Laughter.) I was never I have no 24 cent wool on my hands. (Laughter and cries of "good.") That "good" must be for the gentleman who was so generous in his praise when introducing me, Mr. Hare. (Laughter.) This morning I drove out to the old mission church and stood at the graves of his ancestors, the old chieftans of the Wyandot tribe. (Laughter. He however is a very live Indian, and we don't intend to let him die until we elect him governor of Ohio. (Laughter.) That will be after I get through with the office. (Laughter.) Now, I think you farmers have heard something about wool. (Laughter.) I think that Charlie Foster last year in a speech over here at Sycamore told the farmers to hold their clips that the McKinley bill would raise the price of wool to 40 cents. (Applause and a voice "I heard it, I was there.") Of course you heard it. But where is the man who sold his wool for 40 cents? (A voice, "I sold mine for 16 cents.") Yes, that's it. Major McKinley told you the same thing, but his statements did not prove to be true."

The governor then took up the question of tariff and showed how it was that the tariff on wheat benefited the Canadian instead of the American farmer by an apt illustration.

"Two farmers," said he, "one an American, a resident of Wyandot county, the other a Canadian, ship 10,000 bushels of wheat to England and sell for $10,000. Both conclude to invest the proceeds of the wheat in woolen goods. They do so and they both arrive in New York with the goods. There they part. The Canadian farmer loads his goods into a car and ships it under seal to his own country, but the Wyandot county farmer is stopped, and compelled to pay a duty of $5,000 on his goods before he is allowed to ship it. The goods cost him $15,000 and the freight landed at Upper Sandusky, while the Canadian farmer's cost him $10,000 and the freight landed at his destination. Who is benefited by this tax, the American or the Canadian farmer? (Applause).

Major McKinley has been explaining the low price of wool in a very peculiar manner. Well, it is a peculiar situation and requires a peculiar explanation. The major says if it were not for his law the price of wool would be still lower. I am afraid the major has not been paying much attention to the market lately and we can hardly blame him for being a little shy of the question. If the major had only given the wool market a little study he would have discovered that his year the depression is strictly a home institution. Foreign wools have been selling at a higher figure than usual. I don't mean to say that foreign wools have brought more than domestic wools, as the farmers of Wyandot county and the balance of the wool-producing sections of Ohio market a much superior article. But the fact remains that the coarser woods of our cousins across the water which are used in working up our Ohio woods have commanded a much higher figure. Take the tariff from the wools has been increased, but to hold the price of woolen clothing some section of the wool-producing family had to suffer. That increased duty on foreign wools had to be made up in some other direction, and the manufacturers in looking about selected the rich (applause) wool growers of Ohio as the fellows. Talk to friends, is one of the beauties of protection to the American wool grower. (Continued applause).

The governor then took up the farm mortgage question, and from the report of the state board of equalization showed the depreciation in the value of lands in Wyandot county. He also showed the increase of indebtedness and mortgages.

"I know," said the governor, "that I am not making myself popular with the republican committee, by the way, in using these statistics which were gathered by republican officials, but I propose to let the people of Ohio know what is going on. I am called a calamity croaker and at Ada recently Major McKinley took occasion to quote some one who doesn't live in Ohio are grumbling. If the farmers of Ohio are getting rich, then this is well do them no harm. I am not correct then republican statistics, and it is their duty something is wrong, and it is their duty to find out what it is and correct the evil. I have no desire to see the farmers of Ohio suffer depression and if I were the cause of such depression I think I would make a good beginning at the polls next November by voting for a Democratic ticket next time."

"Make it thousand at least."

(Cries of "Will do.")

The governor made a tour of the grounds on foot and after the speaking returned to the hotel about 4 o'clock, where he held another reception. He left for Columbus at 7:25 o'clock, and will speak at Westerville this afternoon.

The Ohio Campaign Attracting Great Attention.

How the Writers in St. Louis Look at Us.

A Bold Move by Governor Campbell in Making a Tour Through the Western Reserve.

St. Louis, Oct. 10.—The Republic has been paying a great amount of attention to the Ohio campaign this fall and prints the following:

Up to 10 days ago the Ohio campaign was a one-sided affair. Gov. Campbell's illness, together with the democratic policy of allowing the republicans to fully develop the plan of their fight before entering on their own canvass, tended to create the impression that the democrats intended to let the state go by default, but the developments of the past week have changed all of this, and from now on the fighting will be fast and furious.

In past campaigns the Ohio democrats have strictly adhered to the idea that it was bad policy to stir up the Republican Western Reserve, as they protested on the theory that the more this section was agitated the more republicans would be attracted to the polls.

They have changed the long-standing rule and are to experiment with the Reserve.

So far as Governor Campbell's tour through that part of the state is concerned, there can be no complaint on account of the size of the meetings or the attention paid him, but the result at the ballot-box is another problem. The governor's bold move in going to the Reserve and appealing to the republican farmers for their votes, and the manner in which he was received has annoyed the republican managers considerably, and this week they are arranging to have Major McKinley and other prominent republicans go through the counties in which he spoke.

It may not be necessary to worry about the farmers on the Reserve, but, as the republican managers explain, it is not good politics to take too much for granted.

There is a great difference between Governor Campbell's and Major McKinley's styles of campaigning. The major is an orator, and all of his efforts are prepared and polished. His attitudes on the platform are dramatic and graceful, and he would not think of appearing without the frock coat which is so familiar to the galleries of the house of representatives.

If Governor Campbell is possessed of any great oratorical powers he is making a careful attempt to conceal them in this campaign. There are occasions during his speeches when he approaches the point of eloquence, but the major portion of his time is devoted to a plain, every-day talk to the people.

He wears a gray sack coat with trousers to match, and on a very warm day he has a very clever manner of asking the indulgence of the audience and removing his coat.

This never fails to please, and the spectacle of the governor of the great state of Ohio, in his shirt-sleeves, addressing the people on the political topics of the day, must be witnessed to be fully appreciated.

As before stated, the governor doesn't "orate." He simply talks to the audience. Every incident during his meetings is turned to account, as the governor believes there is everything in keeping an audience in good humor.

His manner of speaking enables him to get very close to his auditors, and naturally invites questions. The chap who asks questions at a political meeting is still living here in Ohio, and puts in an appearance at every meeting. Campbell is very quick at repartee, always courteous to the interrogating representative of the enemy, and before the flurry caused by the interruption is over everybody concerned has been able to extract considerable fun out of the performance.

The effort to interest the people in the silver question has not been a success. Governor Campbell rarely refers to it, and Major McKinley is now devoting more of his attention to the tariff.

It is wonderful to see how the people will turn out in the broiling sun and listen to discussions on the tariff. At Coshocton General Warner, the ex-member of congress, who is a leading light among the free-silver men, opened the afternoon meeting and occupied the time until the governor's train arrived. He had hardly begun his argument before the large audience tired and strayed to shady nooks in the court house park to await the coming of Governor Campbell.

When the latter put in an appearance and immediately plunged into the tariff question there was the most marked enthusiasm and interest.

All of last week Governor Campbell confined his speeches to the tariff and the indebtedness of the Ohio farmers. In speaking of this he said: "If any of my audiences desire to hear me on the silver question I will accommodate them, but I regard the tariff paramount to every other issue in the campaign, and I propose to talk tariff up to the very finish."

Both the republican and democratic managers claim that the people's party is about at its rope's end. They say that the nomination of Seitz for governor was too much for the farmers to swallow, and that they are getting back into their old party lines.

Of course, the leaders of the third party denounce these assertions as grossly untrue. Their favorite retort is to claim that the movement in Ohio is far in advance of where it was in Kansas this time last year, and then they point to Peffer, Simpson and the other curious products of that election. The Ohio papers have not been able to get away from that old-fashioned way of claiming everything and claiming it with confidence.

The republican managers and newspapers no longer make any attempt to conceal the fact that the senatorial tilt between Sherman and Foraker is getting an important figure in the campaign. As to which faction has the best of the fight up to the present time it is very hard to determine. The claims are most conflicting, and if all the reports are to be believed there are quite a number of republican nominees for the Assembly who have pledged themselves to help Foraker and Sherman. Major McKinley realized the danger in the senatorial fight, and has done everything in his power to prevent its introduction in the campaign. In his speeches last week he took occasion to call attention to it and admonish the voters that the election of a republican legislature was of more importance than his own success. The Sherman-Foraker fight has caused no small amount of disgust among the more conservative republicans of the state, and should it turn out that Major McKinley is defeated for governor and a republican legislature elected it is more than probable that he would be chosen to succeed Senator Sherman.

The movement to have the Australian ballot law declared invalid is not popular, and Chairman Faby of the republican state committee is quick to declare that, while the proceedings were instituted by republican politicians, he doesn't approve of their action, and is in favor of giving the new law a fair trial at the November election, and then if it doesn't prove satisfactory to amend or repeal it.

But the republicans who don't agree with Faby are quite numerous and active. They believe that they can secure an early hearing in the supreme court and have the law declared unconstitutional before the November election. Unfortunately it is true that the supreme court of this state has been known to move at a very rapid gait when political necessities stared it in the face. This new election law contributes another uncertain element to the election.

In about every county in the state voting schools have been opened by the two leading political parties, and it is a peculiar fact that what is known as the most intelligent class is not taking advantage of these schools. Perhaps the best-posted people on the new ballot law are the ward politicians.

They have made a carefully study of all its provisions, and only the other day I heard one of this latter class call a well-known lawyer down on one of his propositions concerning it. The lawyer insisted that he was right and the ward-worker insisted that he was wrong. Finally the law itself was consulted and the lawyer was forced to admit that the other fellow had stated the point correctly and that he was in error.

FACTS FROM FINDLAY.

Big Day at Hancock County Fair.

The Usual Trouble With Thieves—First Day's Registration—General Mention.

Findlay, O., Oct. 10.—(Special)—The total number of voters registered in the eight wards in this city yesterday was 1,443, showing a falling off over the first day this year, although the result should have been for the better as the wards are now divided into two voting precincts and more of an effort was made to bring out the voters.

Suit for Damages.

Suit has been commenced in common pleas court in this county by T. H. Gould, W. J. George and W. E. M. Dunes, employes of the Findlay, Ft. Wayne & Western railroad against J. H. Chance and D. C. Williamson, of Ottawa, for $5,000 damages in each suit for false imprisonment for six days for contempt of court. The men were in charge of a train and run across a piece of property belonging to Gen. A. V. Rice. The case was taken to the circuit court on appeal, and the court decided against the parties and hence the suit.

Picked Up Here.

Mr. O'Connell, of Lima, was in the city yesterday looking for his wayward 16-year-old daughter. She stole $5 out of his pocket and came to this city with a young girl companion. He found them registered at the Sherman house as the Leslie sisters, of Dayton. He compelled them to get up and dress themselves and return home on the late train.

Thieves Arrested.

Marshal Meyers and Officer Beems arrested three men near the fair grounds yesterday for stealing lap robes out of farmers' wagons. One of them gave up without trouble and the other two started to run but Marshal Meyers induced them to throw up their hands with his revolver. They gave Chicago as their residence.

The Big Day.

From 10,000 to 12,000 people were at the fair grounds yesterday and the members of the Agricultural society are pleased in their success. Tomorrow is the last day. The races have been very close and exciting. There is no end to side shows and games of chance of every description were in full blast. The display of live stock was never better in this county.

THAT STRANGE MRS. DEE.

She is the Victim of the Morphine Habit.

Her Former Husband Tells of the Life of the Woman Now Exciting Eastern Cities.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 10.—A dispatch a few days ago stated that Mrs. Kate F. Dee, the wife of a Buffalo lawyer, was in jail in Baltimore on the charge of obtaining money upon a forged check. The only lawyer of that name here is John F. Dee and until last night he refused to talk upon the subject.

He then made a statement in which he admitted that the woman was his wife, but that they had separated about four years ago, she taking the child and he providing means for its support.

She shortly left Buffalo and has lived in the east since. Several years ago when the Dees lived in Chicago the wife developed a mania for speculating in stocks and lost large sums of money.

She also mixed her husband up in other transactions which cost him large amounts.

They moved to Buffalo and she continued the same practices until Mr. Dee insisted upon a separation. He says she has been a slave of the opium and morphine habit for many years and therefore not morally responsible for her actions.

Mr. Dee says that the interests of justice will be better served in her case by confining her in an asylum than in a state prison.

REFORM CHURCH.

An Interesting Session of the Synod at Bellevue.

Publication—Rev. A. S. Zerbe, Ph. D., of Tiffin.

On Finance—Rev. S. W. Seeman, of Columbus.

On Nominations—Rev. James H. Steele, of Alpha.

Minister of General Synod—Rev. G. H. Leonard, of Basil.

The general superintendent of missions read and submitted a carefully prepared report. Most of the missions have made commendable progress. In many instances the additions have been quite large.

The Ladies Missionary society of the synod was held in the Congregational church and a special program was most successfully carried out in the evening.

A lively interest is being manifested in the transaction of the business of the synod.

IN WYANDOT COUNTY.

Squire Shows Republicans a Thing or Two.

He Raises a Big Row at Upper Sandusky.

The Democracy of the County Is Thoroughly Organized and Will Increase the Usual Majority.

Upper Sandusky, Oct. 10.—(Special)—Old Wyandot is always in line for the valiant democracy is full of fight, and keeps the banners of the party on the outer wall.

The majority here is not so overwhelming as in other democratic counties in the northwest, but it is large enough to be safe. Last year Cromley carried it by 840, but the indications are that it will be increased this year.

The party is united and aggressive, and determined to retrieve the misfortunes of two years ago, when a republican sheriff and commissioner were elected by reason of a church fight among democrats.

There will be no trouble of that kind this year, and the entire democratic county ticket will be elected by the usual majority at least.

The republicans of Wyandot county are not in the best of shape. They have a local fight on their hands and besides are suffering considerably on account of the insolent and impudent interference of W. J. Squire, president of the Ohio Republican league.

If the stories told here are true, Squire has shown himself to be unfit to hold the position he occupies. He engaged S. A. Cuneo, of this place, to organize the republicans of the county into clubs. Cuneo looked over the ground, and was told by the leaders of the party that they had no need of clubs, and that an active organization would open the fight wider and prevent a pacification of the warring elements.

Squire was advised to this effect, and told that the organization of clubs was inadvisable. He wrote down, urging that the organization be proceeded with regardless of the wishes of Wyandot republicans.

He was again advised that the thing could not be done, and then the league president wrote a most vituperative and insulting letter down here, charging the republicans leaders with being infamous cowards and political poltroons. The letter was an insult to every republican in Wyandot county, and they so regarded it.

Notwithstanding all these protests, Squire sent Walter Brown, son of the postmaster, down, and instructed him to organize clubs in the edges of the county, but to stay away from Upper Sandusky.

The effort, however, was a failure, but if Squire ever shows up here he will be given a warm reception.

This is the home of Hon. W. C. Gear, democratic senatorial candidate in the Thirty-first district. Gear is a very brilliant young man of considerable ability and splendidly aggressive democratic blood in his veins.

When he was nominated for senator he had considerable opposition, owing to the fact that at that time he was also the democratic nominee for representative. This opposition vanished in a short time and Gear will not have less than 2,000 majority.

The people's party and republicans combined nominated a man named McCammon, and bragged that they would beat Gear with him, but in a short time things were brought out against McCammon which were sufficient to put an end to his aspirations. It was charged that he was a Bohemian oats man, and he is known throughout Crawford and Wyandot counties as "Bohemian Bob."

"This sort of man cannot beat popular Billy Gear, and the latter is serenely confident. "I never had any opposition worth speaking of," said he to a Bee, "and have no fear that I will not have the usual democratic majority of from 2,500 to 3,000.

"The farmers all over this district are much better informed than ever before, and will vote this fall for the party that offers them the most. Gov. Campbell is popular here and will carry the county by 1,000 majority."

"How about your county ticket?"

"It is composed of splendid men and will be elected in its entirety."

Hon. D. D. Hare, the man who defeated Charlie Foster for congress last fall, lives at this place, and is one of the most popular men in this part of the state. He is remarkably well informed and will make and ideal congressman. When the Bee asked him for his views on political issues he said:

"My platform is the same as the platform of my party as adopted at the convention at Cleveland. I believe that the great question of taxation more nearly interests the people of Ohio than any front until the hydra-headed and pig-headed doctrine of high protection is other, and that it should be kept at the driven out of the country. What we need in this land of ours is an open market and no favors. We can take care of ourselves and have no fear for the future if the trade barriers surrounding us are thrown down."

"What do you think of the result in the state this fall?"

"I have no fears for Gov. Campbell or his candidacy. He is an able, honest and conscientious man, the synonym of integrity, and the personification of the democratic doctrine of low taxes and good government. If the people of Ohio do not choose him as against the candidate of the monopolistic classes, and the champion of high taxation, I will lose all the confidence I have ever had in the people of the Buckeye state."

Mr. George Foster, sergeant-at-arms of the state house, said:

"The democrats of Wyandot county will increase their majority considerably this year. We are in splendid fighting shape and have a live democratic club in every township. First we organized a big central club here, and then followed it up with the auxiliaries throughout the county. Gear? He will be elected by majority of at least 3,000. He is one of the best democrats in the county and everybody who knows him admires him. He has practically no enemies."

"How about Gov. Campbell?"

"Well, I will tell you how I stand. I was not for his renomination, but was a Neal man. The minute he was nominated, however, I took off my coat for him, and will not put it on till the polls close election day. He will be elected."

Dr. Billhartz, one of the leaders here, is enthusiastic.

"We never had such a glorious chance for a great victory," said he. "Everything is our way. We have the platform, which is nearest the people, and a candidate who is right down among them all the time. Nothing aristocratic or undemocratic about Jimmy Campbell."

Mr. William Miller, of McCutcheonville, one of the sterling democrats in this section, said: "There is no doubt in my mind but that democratic principles will triumph this fall. In my neighborhood I know of several men who will vote and work for democracy and its candidates who have never done so before. The people appear to be awaking on this question of the tariff, and it must prevail in time, and in my opinion that time is not far away. The boys are enthusiastic and eager for fight this year, which is always a good sign."

The sentiment expressed by these gentlemen is the same that is entertained by every democrat in Wyandot county, and if every county in the state was as staunchly and truly democratic as Wyandot, Gov. Campbell would have in the neighborhood of 88,000 majority in the state.

DEATH TO THE SHARKS.

Old Soldiers on the Pension Question.

They Want to Form an Organization to Do Away With the Army of Bloodsuckers.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—An organization of soldiers, that has for one of its objects the destruction of the business of the pension sharks who have promoted mendicancy and a low standard of honor among veterans, and which treats such an opposition as patriotic and philanthropic, seems like a strange one to be formed in Washington, but such an organization has been formed, with veterans for its officers and with a very plain prospectus to set forth its objects in full.

The promoters of the new soldiers organization hold that the soldier who went into the army were not inspired by the hope of gain, but by the desire to secure to themselves and their posterity the benefits of a sound government; and that the men and women who remained at home, many of them as loyal and brave as those who went into the field, are entitled to stand together with the veterans in any organization that is made to celebrate the achievements of the army.

Further than that, the organization of Loyal Volunteers, as it is called, asserts that good character was as essential to success in the field as it was at home, and that there were men in the field who did not come up to the requirements of decent life anywhere and who now do not hesitate to live on the generous gratitude of the people as exposed by means of pensions obtained by fraud and at the expense of honor.

Men who had the intelligence, energy and courage to succeed in the field now have equal ability with men who were not soldiers to compete with their fellows in the pursuits of peace, and some of them wounded, but in good health, support their families with no more idea of shirking that duty than they would have thought of shirking duty in the field.

They demand that the pension legislation shall be so revised that honor, as well as the necessities of the soldier, shall be fully recognized and guarded. In the prospectus they say:

"If the people do not rally to the support of this effort of the old soldiers to relieve their honor from the mercenary stain that is being put upon them by the sophistry and industry of pension attorneys, they should hereafter meekly pay, without a murmur, any demands for more and larger pensions that may be made.

"A society organized to teach that the duty of loyalty includes honesty as well as courage in dealing with or defending the government, and that 'impairment of earning capacity' is the only just and honorable basis for a claim for damages sustained in the line of duty that should secure the active co-operation and support of every fair-minded and loyal soldier, sailor and citizen."

A BISHOP ON A TRAMP.

He Walked Over Three Hundred Miles.

The Head of Delaware's Episcopal Church Makes an Odd and Adventurous Journey.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 10.—Bishop Coleman, of the Delaware P. E. Diocese, returned here yesterday from a twenty days pedestrian tour through the Shenandoah Valley and other parts of Virginia, during which he covered 375 miles. His walk began at Harrisburg and ended at Roanoke after a circuitous route.

The bishop's identity was unknown to the residents, and he was mistaken for a detective, book agent, circus advance agent and a speculator. One individual, who thought he was trying to ferret out moonshiners, offered to give him points. The venerable walker was not favored with pleasant weather, for the thermometer exceeded 100 degrees during much of the journey.

At a village between Harrisburg and Staunton the populace were suspicious of the tourist and would not accommodate him. Not wishing to spend the night in the open air he burst in the door of a forsaken dwelling and slept on the floor. The next morning he walked three miles for breakfast. One afternoon, while napping under trees, he was rudely awakened by a snake which was coiled uncomfortably near him.

SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION.

Ohio Yacht Club Begins Another Successful Year.

Officers Elected for the Term—The Secretary's Interesting Report —The Club in Splendid Condition.

The Ohio Yacht club held its sixth annual session last evening at the club rooms on St. Clair street. There was a good attendance and much interest manifested.

Secretary John E. Gunckel read his annual report of the receipts and expenditures for the year ending October 1.

Aside from the regular facts and figures John introduced some highly interesting features on the side.

The report showed: Cash on hand, October 10, 1890, $475.45; cash received from all sources during the year, $3,366.50; total receipts, $3,841.75.

The report included numerous miscellaneous items; for instance, the total cost of the building and improvements at Presque Isle, $5,381.54.

Number of active members in good standing 313; non-resident members 44; honorary members, 19; total 376.

During the year there were 19 gentlemen elected to active membership who refused to pay the initiation fee, claiming their names were proposed without their consent. Two members died. Eight were dropped for non-payment of dues. Fourteen resigned without cause. Eleven left the city permanently, thus becoming non-resident members. One hundred and sixty-three have paid dues in full to January 1, 1892. Five have paid dues to July 1, 1892; 145 members owe dues for quarter ending January, 1892.

With fore thought worthy of applause, the able secretary incorporated on his report a communication from James H. Pheatt, chairman of the entertainment committee, dated Fremont, Oct. 4, who it seems had pressing business at Fremont and mailed the following document from that point:

Officers and Members of the Ohio Yacht Club:

Please pardon the delay in sending the official report. I have been previously occupied since my arrival here last evening. I have been among the Poets alone in the ebbing twilight hour listening to the river's autumnal son, in its onward march to Sandusky Bay. Fremont is a great place for meditation. I was watching the harvest moon to-night in the gloaming, until the twilight faded down the ethereal space; it was then I lost my head. The stars shone one by one when she found it resting on the downy plumage of Fremont's fairest flower. In making a report of this committee, we have but one object in view, namely, to thank the gentlemen who so kindly favored us with instructive and amusing entertainments. Gentlemen, in the name of this committee, I thank you.

JAMES H. PHEATT, Chairman.

The club purchased a billiard and pool table and expects to pay for them by contributing so much for each game. The account stands, amount paid, $120; balance due, $137. The champion whist player was not forgotten by the careful secretary, and his report was included, which read:

Easy Stine, Sept. 11.

To the Commodore and Members O. Y. C.:

I beg to report that myself and the secretary of this club, at a challenge game of whist, played September 10, 1891, by and between Col. C. A. Flickinger and Wm. Clarke, the latter late from Europe, with new movements, being the opposing party, did according to the rules of the game, take 13 straight tricks from the gentlemen, leaving them in a demoralized condition and unfit to vote the Australian ballot.

Your obedient servant,

J. POTTER.

Signed in the presence by the above named gentlemen and others of equally as good standing.

Treasurer's Report.

The following miscellaneous report is of interest:

Number of gentlemen who were appointed on committees and did no work, 17.

Number of members married during the year, as officially reported, 7.

Number engaged to be married within six months, 2; within a year, 9.

Value of donations during the year, $275.

Champion three-ball, 5 to 1, billiard player, R. P. Worrall.

Second recognized champion and first three to one, Henry T. Marshall.

Third in the ring, Fremont rule, Jas. H. Pheatt.

Improving, with chance of recognition, Frank B. Hartman, Samuel A. Hunter.

Champion four or more ball player, Henry R. Felker.

Best out of three pool players, L. J. Potter, D. W. Stroud.

The recognized truthful angler of the club continues to wear the medal.

The report was received with broad smiles from everybody, and was ordered filed.

This was followed by the election of officers to serve during the ensuing year, which resulted as follows:

Commodore—G. W. Bills.
Vice Commodore—V. H. Ketcham.
Rear Commodore—Henry Tracy.
Secretary—John E. Gunckel.
Treasurer—Chas. W. Klauser.
Fleet Surgeon—Dr. J. T. Woods.
Master Captain—Dennison Steele.
Fleet Captain—John Webber.
Directors—James H. Pheatt, Frank A. Lee, Henry T. Marshall, G. H. Ketcham, Geo. W. Bills, C. W. Klouser, V. H. Ketcham, John E. Gunckel.

The secretary read an invitation to the O. Y. C., extended by the Royal Yacht of Hamilton, Ont., to be present at the opening of the Hamilton club's new club house. A vote of thanks was passed.

The commodore and secretary were directed to draft resolutions in respect in memory of I. N. Reid, who at the time of his death was a member of the club.

THE BARR LAND CASE.

A Commissioner Will Be Appointed to Partition the Property.

W. S. Thurstin has returned from Cincinnati, where he has been in attendance at a hearing of the great Barr land case. A motion to appeal the decree whereby 7-18 of the property valued at $2,000, 000 was to go to the outside claimants was overruled by Judges Sage and Jackson.

A commission and board of appraisers will be appointed to partition the property. Mrs. W. S. Thurstin is one of the heirs, and will receive her share.

LOCAL LABOR NEWS.

What the Organized Toilers Are Saying and Doing.

Mr. Owen, long a resident in Toledo, and well known here, delivered the Labor day address at Minneapolis. His subject was "The Relation of Organized Laborers to Agriculture," and the speech was a very eloquent one.

The secretary of D. A. 72, K. of L., has issued the call for the third quarterly meeting of the district for 1891. It will be held in Walbridge hall on Wednesday, October 21, and a large attendance is expected.

The machine workers transacted little but routine business at their regular meeting in Carpenters' hall, last night. The strike of the tailors was endorsed.

There is little change in the condition of the tailors' strike. "Both sides firm," perhaps expresses the situation. The union met last night at Druid hall, and every member endorsed the conclusion to stay out until their terms were acceded to. The women tailors of the city are all in sympathy with the strikers, generously forgetting that the doors of this union have been heretofore barred against them.

The plasterers met at Mulcahey's hall and the lathers at Union hall last night. Both have grievances which were considered and will be acted upon at future meetings. The lathers initiated two new members.

THE CIRCUIT COURT

Renders Some Important Decisions This Morning.

Verdict Against Dr. Quigley Affirmed —Consolidated May Put Up Wires Where the Robisons Run— Other Findings.

The circuit court convened in G. A. R. hall this morning and handed down opinions in several cases.

The first was that of George A. Chase against the Toledo & Michigan Belt Railroad company, an action in error, involving the appropriation of property, in probate court. The question raised involved the manner in which the preliminary hearing should be had, whether by jury or hearing to the probate court. The circuit court held that the legislature delegated how a condemnation suit should be disposed of, set aside the appeal and confirme dthe judgment of the court below.

The next case was that of Patrick F. Quigley against the state, the particulars of which are familiar. Judge Haynes delivered the opinion in a very clear and distinct manner.

The motion raising the question as to the jurisdiction of the court below was overruled, the court holding that the common pleas court had jurisdiction to try the case.

If the motion to set aside the panel of a struck jury on the ground that a struck jury demanded by the state in criminal cases was illegal, the court held that the law providing for the impaneling of a criminal jury provided at the same time for a civil jury, and the state had as good right to demand a struck jury as the defendant.

The next question disposed of was the objection to the charge of the common pleas court, which was thoroughly reviewed.

To the claim that the law was unconstitutional, for the reason that it interfered with parental authority, and on account of the penalties imposed, the court presented in an elaborate and extensive manner. He quoted statutes and cited authorities relating to the parent's authority over his child, including the truant laws and penalties.

In closing, with reference to the charge, the court stated that the supreme court would not permitted to pass upon the constitutionality of the law, that it was not for the circuit court to question the power of the legislature to pass such a law, and that it was the opinion of the court that there was no error in the charge to the jury relative to the constitution, which practically decided the case.

As to the demurrer to the indictment on the ground that parochial schools were neither public nor private, it was held by the court to have been properly overruled by the court below, holding that a parochial school was a private school.

To the objection raised that the state failed to show evidence that Patrick Quigley was principal of the school, the court held that evidence showed he was the principal of St. Francis de Sales school, and the proper person with whom the return blanks should have been left and the proper person on whom devolved the duty of making or causing to be made a return of scholars enrolled as required by statute.

The court concluded by stating that the judgment of the court below was affirmed.

Judge Bentley decided the case in error of Toledo against Lewis, and sustained the judgment of the common pleas court.

It was an action for damages brought in common pleas court by the defendant in error for injury to property sustained in changing the grade of Superior street. The jury gave the plaintiff below a verdict in the sum of $700.

In the case of the Consolidated Street Railway company against the Toledo Electric Street Railway company, an action to dissolve the injunction restraining the plaintiff in error from erecting trolley wires on Adams, Summit, Monroe and Washington streets, the injunction was dissolved to a certain extent. The defendant procured the injunction on the ground that another trolley wire erected in these streets would interfere with them. The Consolidated introduced evidence to show that it would not. The court held that the Consolidated would not be restrained from putting up their wires as long as they did not interfere with the Robison's wires.

The case of M. Goldberger against the state was remanded back to common pleas court for new trial. Verdict set aside, sentence and judgment reversed.

Goldberger, it will be remembered, was convicted during the last term of criminal court on the charge of perjury, and sentenced to a term of three years in the penitentiary.

Judge Pike was the prosecuting witness, and the case was based on a statement Goldberger made under oath relative to an account between himself and Judge Pike. The circuit court found error in the instruction to the jury to the effect that the testimony of Frank Reno was corroborative of the testimony of Judge Pike.

TO DEPOSIT FISH.

The car in charge of Superintendent Lantz, of the Ohio state fish commission, will arrive in Toledo next week and a deposit of fish will be made at the O. Y. C. grounds, Ten Mile creek and Swan creek. The first deposit will be mostly black bass. Mr. Lantz stated to a Bee that catfish would be planted up the river later on.

FROM THE FRYING PAN TO THE FIRE.

In the habeas corpus proceedings brought in probate court by Catharine Rogouski against Father Wirezorek, to gain possession of her child, the mother was awarded the child. Several hours after Frederick D. Lanovaund applied for a marriage license to wed Catharine Rogouski, and no doubt before this the child has a stepfather.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

Rev. McLean, Friend Evangelist, who has been holding such interesting meetings in the tent and in the Lagrange Street Congregational church, closes his work in that church next Sunday night and commences a revival meeting in Adams street mission on next Monday evening. The good work done at Lagrange street assures success in the new field.

DEMOCRATIC GATHERING.

Next Tuesday evening the democrats of Adams township will hold a meeting at the town hall, and a full attendance of the people in the vicinity is desired. Mr. Curtis T. Johnson and others will speak in English, and there will also be speaking in German. The democrats of Adams are alive this fall, and will give a good account of themselves at the November election.

CANOE CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Toledo Canoe club was held in the club rooms last evening, and considerable routine business transacted. Messrs. George Miller, Andrew Gray and Robert Jlet were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the last two runs of the season, which will soon be sailed, and which will determine the championship of the season.

TOLEDO AN OIL CENTER.

"We are running to our fullest capacity," said Mr. G. W. Aiken, of the Electric Refining Company. "We came here to stay." In answer to the inquiry as to why they established their works in Toledo, Mr. Aiken very quickly replied: "Well, I will tell you. I have been in the business from my infancy. I looked over your city thoroughly, and I came to the conclusion that eventually Toledo would be an oil center; in any event, it is good enough for me."

NO RACE PROBABLE.

The time limit of the challenge issued by the managers of the Frank E. Kirby to the managers of the City of Toledo will expire at midnight to-night. The managers of the latter boat have shown no disposition to meet the challenge, and the prospects are slim for a race between the two boats. A certified check for $500 from Ashley & Dustin, managers of the Kirby, has been on deposit at the office of the Sandusky Register ever since the challenge was issued, and Mr. Ashley has agreed to raise the amount to $1,000, or even $5,000, if desired by the owners of the Toledo.—Detroit Tribune.

AFTER THE VOTES.

The executive committee of the people's party of Lucas county have arranged to get out 10,000 copies of a paper giving their ticket, platform and demands, and showing generally what they are here for. They have also arranged for a speech by Hon. John Seitz, of Tiffin, candidate on the people's party ticket for governor. Mr. Seitz will speak in Walbridge hall on Monday evening, October 26. Sometime during this month the committee hope to have the Hon. Jerry Simpson here. If a date is arranged for him, and it probably will be, the announcement of the same will be made later on.

A. O. U. W. POINTS.

It is expected that Supreme Master Workman Kinsley, of the A. O. U. W., whose home is in Helena, Montana, will be in Toledo about the second week in November. He will address the local members of the order, and preparations are being made to give him a rousing public reception.

Grand Recorder Pickens reports that the order in this state is now making a steady increase of about three lodges per month. New lodges were instituted last week at Franklin and Fostoria.

The grand trustees and the executive board will meet at Hamilton, O., on Monday.

THE W. F. M. S.

The district convention of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church closed its sessions at Delta yesterday afternoon. There was good interest both days. Mrs. P. F. Pope presided. Mrs. S. W. Flower, the district secretary, was absent on account of illness. Presiding Elder Pope delivered the principal address on Thursday evening, owing to the failure to secure a missionary. Mrs. Pope, Mrs. Flower, and Mrs. Jacquet, of Toledo, and Mrs. Dr. Newton, of Delta, are delegates to the branch convention to be held in Delaware next week. Mrs. J. C. Shaw, of Perrysburg, and Miss Emma Swarts, of Toledo, being the reserves. The old officers were re-elected, and on the whole the meeting was very profitable.

MAKE YOUR APPLICATIONS.

Regarding the free historical course lectures that the Y. M. C. A. has so kindly arranged, the association has issued a circular in substance as follows: "We have arranged for this course, and others which are to follow, because we believe that there is a demand in our city for an educational movement, on the line that has been so eminently successful in England in educating 'the masses' and which is now attracting so much attention in eastern cities, viz.: 'University Extension.'" It is an attempt to popularize higher learning, to bring the university to the people, since so many cannot go to the university. We hope for your hearty co-operation. Tickets such as we send you can be had for the asking—the one condition being that the person accepting pledges attendance when possible. While naturally we are most interested in the attendance of young men, yet we are anxious to have this valuable course reach the greatest possible number, and until our limit is reached, will be glad to welcome all, both ladies and gentlemen."

RAPID TRANSIT.

The safe way to "get there" in Toledo, since the introduction of rapid transit by electric cars, is to walk. On the belt line last evening a car lost its power at the corner of Bartlett street and Lawrence avenue. Another car undertook to push it into town, and that lost power. Finally four cars were being pushed in a line, linked together, and traveling at a snail's rate. Passengers who boarded the car at 7 p. m., to get a good seat in Memorial hall, arrived at that destination in one hour's time, only to find the audience hall crowded to the door and themselves crowded out. One line is no worse than the other in respect to having its cars "strike" for more power in this fashion, and, as aforesaid, Toledo people are learning to walk if they want to know just when they can get to any objective point.

Y. P. S. C. E.

About two hundred people belonging to the Y. P. S. C. E. left the Union depot last evening at 6 o'clock to go to Maumee to attend a Lucas county local meeting. Arriving at Maumee they proceeded to the Presbyterian church, where a brief praise service was conducted, after which the following program was rendered:

Selection—Orlo Male Quartet.
Address—The C. E.'s of the Past—C. H. Whitaker.
The C. E.'s of To-day—C. L. France.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Scammel.
Outlines of Junior Work—Mrs. W. H. Sloan.
Work of the Lookout Committee—Percy Turner.
Selection—Orlo Male Quartet.
Hymn—Congregation.
Work of Prayer Meeting Committee—Mr. C. S. Adams.
Work of Temperance Committee—Fred Hague.
A question bureau: The congregation were provided with slips of paper on which were written questions, which were collected and read and answered by Mrs. Emma Myers.

The exercises were closed by the singing of "God be with you, 'till we meet again," by the congregation. The Toledo people arrived home at 11 p. m. and all felt satisfied with the profitable and interesting meeting. Special rates were made to the society by Mr. Jenkins, of the Clover Leaf.

The Y. P. S. C. E. is doing a vast amount of good work, and should receive encouragement from the general public.

HAS OPENED THEIR EYES.

McKinleyism Means Lower Wages.

A Big Cut Ordered by the Dueber Shops.

Men at the Major's Home in Canton Practically Shown the Working of the New Law.

Canton, Oct. 10.—In order to again illustrate how protection protects the American workmen it is only necessary to say that the Dueber-Hampden watch works of this city have ordered a reduction in wages of from 12 1-2 to 25 per cent, to take effect next Monday.

A watchmaker said last night that many of the employes would not stand the cut, but would leave.

While in search of news concerning the cut one of the managers was seen. When pressed for information he said it was not a cut in wages, but a readjustment of wages—this being the new way of putting it. He did not deny that the decrease would affect several hundred persons. A year ago many of these men were loud shouters for McKinleyism, but now some of them are getting their eyes opende.

MARINE LABORERS

To be Organized Into a General Council.

General Convention to be Held at Chicago in This Interest—Tour of Mr. Thomas J. Elderkin.

Thomas J. Elderkin, of the Seamen's union, Chicago, is in the city to-day in the interests of a marine trades convention to be held in Chicago some time this winter. The plan and object of this convention as stated by Mr. Elderkin are as follows: "Last Sunday there was organized in Chicago a Marine Trades and Labor council, which is very much like the General Labor union. It is composed of five delegates from every union having anything to do with the lake marine, including seamen, longshoremen, lumber shovers coal heavers, grain trimmers, and others. The purpose of this council is to hold these unions together and have them work for the general good as their interests are much the same.

"Escanaba has also organized in the same manner, and it is proposed to organize these local councils in every port along the whole chain of lakes. A general convention of all marine trades will also be held in Chicago this winter for the purpose of forming these trades into a national organization. I am now making a tour of the lake ports in the interests of this convention and inviting all marine trades to send delegates. The plan is meeting with much favor and that convention will be a great one.

"The seamen and others employed about the lakes and harbors need such a general organization, because they have only themselves to look to for help. Away from the lake ports the people don't know what sailors are or what their work consists of and therefore take but little interest in them. But if a national organization is formed of those in marine trades, they can command the situation themselves."

In this connection Mr. Elderkin stated that the longshoremen at Chicago had been organized about two months, but their union already numbers 1,300 members and they have gained an advance in wages.

President Kerens, of the local seamen's union, states that the plan for marine trades council is considered very favorable here, and one will probably be organized. Toledo will also send delegates to the Chicago convention.

BLAINE WILL NEVER RETURN

To be Secretary of State Under Harrison.

Such is the Official Statement Given Out After Yesterday's Cabinet Meeting.

Washington, Oct. 10—Secretaries Blaine and Noble were the only absentees from the cabinet meeting yesterday. The Chilian situation was again under discussion and this brought up Mr. Blaine's name and elicited an inquiry as to when the secretary of state was likely to return to Washington.

The statement was made that Mr. Mr. Blaine is not likely to return for several months, perhaps never.

"Our reports," said a member of the administration, "are to the effect that Mr. Blaine is a broken man. He is strong enough to get around but not strong enough to undertake continuous labor and the said prospect is that he will never be able to resume his place at the head of the state department.

The statement was made that Mr. received concerning Mr. Blaine's health are very discouraging, though of course tending to remove any fear the president may have had that the secretary would run away with the presidential nomination next year.

"I can tell you the view taken of Blaine in the cabinet and among Mr. Blaine's nearest friends, and that is that he is an impossibility as a candidate for the presidency."

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market very firm and strong; corn slow. Weather showery. Liverpool wheat steady at advance of 1 penny per 100 pounds on winter and 1-2 pence on California; corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,127,740 bu, compared with 619,819 bu on the same day last year.

Northwest Wheat Damaged.

St. Paul, Oct. 8.—Reports were received at the state capital to-day indicating a most alarming condition of things in the Red River valley. It is there the wheat crop was the heaviest, and it was absolutely impossible to secure help to thresh the crop and it was left in the fields in stacks in the hope that the appeal of the railroad companies would effect relief in the near future. Then heavy rains fell and continued to drench the shocks. This was followed by cloudy weather, and the shocks woul not dry out.

Chicago Bulletin says: New Corn.—The first car of corn of the crop of 1891 was received in this market to-day. It came from Natrona, Mason county, this state, and was of good color and inspected no grade, owing to dampness. The first car last year was received October 9; in 1889 on October 18; in 1888 on October 5; in 1887 on September 22.

Yesterday Antwerp wheat market was quoted about 2c per bu higher. Berlin 1 3-4c lower. Paris 3-4c higher.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 507,021 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain for the week at eight principal western points are wheat 6,565,000 bu, corn 686,000 bu, oats 1,965,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 the receipts of wheat were 3,369,000 bu, corn 2,012,000 bu, oats, 2,341,000 bu, showing a gain in wheat of 3,196,000 bu, a loss in corn of 1,326,000 bu and a loss in oats of 375,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 345,756 bu of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 425,000 bu. The exports of corn were 27,310 bu.

The exports in the week from the same ports were: Wheat, 2,213,000 bu; corn, 670,000 bu; oats, 182,000 bu. In the previous week: Wheat, 1,403,000 bu; corn, 1,261,000 bu; oats, 140,000 bu.

Bradstreet's report of exports of wheat in the week ending October 8 from both coasts, 3,958 810 bu, and including Montreal, 4,515,815 bu.

The receipts of wheat at eight leading western markets—see table herein—are 6,565,000 bu., and shipments 4,525,000 bu.

The wheat and corn markets in this country opened about 1c higher under the influence of better foreign quotation, and the feature of leading importance in these quotations is that winter wheat at Liverpool advanced much more than other grades. Chicago reports the advance at 2 p. m. per 100 pounds equal to 2.40 cents per bu. Our cable report makes the advance less than that.

The markets are very quiet all around, and it has been a dull Saturday, with some indisposition manifested to follow up the advance abroad. At 12 o'clock New York closed at a gain of 3-4c on October and December wheat, and a gain of 7-8c on October and November corn. October oats 1-4c higher.

After New York closed Chicago declined on wheat and closed at a loss on December of 5l8c and on October corn 1-8c. October oats 1-4c higher.

In Toledo the wheat market has been dull all day and while futures opened 1-2 to 5-8c higher, there was but little vim in the deal and buyers were quite indifferent. The advance was lost and December closed only 1-4c above yesterday, and May at a loss of 3-4c.

On the call December sold at $1.03 7-8 to $1.03 5-8 and May at $1.10. After the call December sold at $1.03 7-8 and closed at $1.02 3-4. May sold at $1.10 and closed at $1.08 3-4. Cash wheat was only moderately active. The demand was not so sharp as it has been, and prices closed 1-4c lower. No. 2 soft sold at $1.01 and closed at $1.00 1-4; No. 3 soft at 97 1-2c; rejected No. 1 at 85@86c; No. 2 at 80c; No. 2 white at 97c; No. 3 white at 95c.

Corn—Nothing doing.

Oats—No. 2 white at 31 3-4c.

Rye was dearer: No. 2 at 88 1-2c; No. 3 at 85@85 1-2c.

Clover seed was firm, and in some positions a shade higher. Prime for cash at $4.47 1-2; December, $4.55; January at $4.60; No. 2 at $4.10@4.20.

Wheat opened 3-4c higher, advanced another 1-4c, then reacted 1-4c and at noon was steady; No. 2 red winter cash, $1 07 3-4; October, $1 07 1-4; December, $1 10 1-4. Corn opened at 3-8c advance, moved up 1-2c more and at noon was strong; No. 2 mixed cash, 62c; October, 61 3-8c; December, 53c. Oats firm; No. 2 mixed cash, 33 1-4c; October, 33 1-4c; December, 34 1-4c. Rye strong. Barley very firm. Molasses unchanged. Sugar, raw, strong; refined firm; cutloaf and crushed, 5 1-8c. Governments closed dull; currency 6s, $1 11 bid; 4s coup, $1 16 1-4 bid; extended 2s, registered, $1 00 bid.

The market opened quiet and with dealings of an almost purely professional nature. There was, however, a fair degree of strength exhibited and after a firm opening prices advanced from 1-8@1 per cent, the latter in Hocking Valley. After 11 o'clock prices receded again under the lead of Louisville and Nashville and many of the leading stocks were placed below their opening figure. On the other hand, however, Louisville, St. Louis and Texas advanced 1 1-2@2, and the Nickel Plate stocks and Hocking Valley were strong. The market finally closed quiet and firm at fair changes from the last prices. The bank statement was good, showing an increase in the reserve of $3,536,725. The banks now hold $6,638,475 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent. rule. Total sales to-day, 92,482 shares.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Close: Wheat—December, 99 1-2@99 5-8c; May, $1 05 3-8. Corn—November, 48 1-8c; December, 43 5-8c; May, 42 1-8c. Oats—November, 27 7-8c; May, 31c. SCROFULOUS SORES

Lady Badly Afflicted Three Years Tries Many Doctors Here and in England Without Benefit. Cured by Cuticura.

My wife having suffered from scrofula sores on the back for three years, and at times she could not lie down at night, and she tried all the doctors I could get, and also went to England to try and be cured there, and all of them failed, and told her they could do nothing for her; and having tried all kinds of remedies I at last tried one box of your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and to-day she is as well as she ever was in her life, and her back is as clear as any person living, and I for one can recommend CUTICURA REMEDIES as the only one I could find to effect a cure. G. W. JONES, Constable, 23 Sayles Street, Cleveland, O.

INHERITED SCROFULA

My nose was of a most pronounced crimson hue, the result of inherited scrofula. I suffered intolerable mortification daily, and tried enough remedies to stock a drug store without deriving the slightest benefit. I tried the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and the most flattering results followed their use. I am all right now and I cannot find words strong enough to bestow upon what I know to be the greatest and grandest gifts given by science to man. Please accept the most sincere and grateful thanks of one who has suffered. C. T. SEWENSTEIN MAHONEY, No 300 E. 67th St., New York, N. Y.

Even Mr. McKinley now admits that the tariff is a tax.

The John Shermanites in Toledo have scored another victory by compelling the state committee to let Uncle John address his friends in the city. He will do so at Memorial hall next Wednesday.

Have you registered? If not, do so, and then when you go to the polls put an X mark at the left of the words Democratic Ticket. That will make you a sovereign proud of yourself.

Harry Dowling is not a Know Nothing. He is a Know Something and a mighty good young man to elect to the important office of Sheriff of Lucas county.

The New York World, the Pittsburg Post, the Chicago Herald, and other outside papers are giving much attention to the Ohio campaign. Especially is the World doing good service, for which Ohio democrats are deeply grateful.

Perhaps the most convincing portion of Mr. Mills' speech last night was his clear illustration of the fact that enhanced price on life's necessities is equivalent to a reduction of the wages of the consumer. That is a side of the question the protectionists entirely ignore and for manifest reasons.

Eleazer Willing Poe is booked for half a dozen republican speeches in Wood county. Eb and Flickinger would make a great traveling pair. Both are celebrated orators, one of the broad brimmed, oratorical kind and the other silver haired. Simpe instead of brains are their distinguishing characteristics.

It is said by one who knows that with barely one exception every Republican office in the court house is to be made one of the Toledo Know Nothing Society which is organized to proscribe a certain class of citizens. This is an alarming state of affairs which calls for prompt repressive measures. In free America we want no un-American notions. We want no proscription here in Toledo.

The circuit court to-day decided that the Consolidated Railway company has the right to erect wires on streets now occupied by the Robison lines. This will place the two companies on an equal footing and will enable the Consolidated to operate electric cars on Adams, Summit and Monroe streets. The decision contains the element of good sense and is clearly in the interest of rapid transit.

Protection has attacked American labor right in Mr. McKinley's own town. The Dueber Watch Case Company has ordered a reduction of wages from twelve to twenty-five per cent. That is a nut which the Prince of Protection cannot crack. If his bill will increase wages why are his especial home friends, the Duebers, obliged to make this sweeping reduction? What about the boom he promised if his bill should become a law?

The largest political meeting of recent years was held in Memorial hall last night to listen to the great tariff reformer, Roger Q. Mills, of Texas. The speaker addressed himself to the intelligence of the audience and made a masterly argument for lower taxes. It was just such a meeting as evinces interest in the campaign, and which shows that the people are aroused to the importance of the present campaign. Unless the political barometer is all wrong in this locality the democratic vote will be surprisingly large this year.

The Toledo Blade is hedging on the vicious attack upon Gov. Campbell's credit, probably to avoid a libel suit. The same day the New York Recorder and Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette published the libelous and outrageously mean article the Blade printed the substance of it as a special from Columbus, and it gave the article prominence by leading the lines. The meanest part of the lying article was printed in the Blade, and now it brazenly says the only Ohio paper that printed the story was the Cincinnati blundering Commercial-Gazette.

A French journal says, of course there will be an exhibition of French goods at the world's fair in the United States, but it will lack magnitude and any degree of enthusiasm. It is small use, says the article, to show our goods in a country that desires not to trade with us.

And this view of the world's fair is general in the countries of Europe—what good exhibiting your wares in a market where the sale of them is ruled out. The McKinley tariff law is a direct blow to the world's fair, and has done more to stir up animosity and a spirit of retaliation and to bring the United States into disrepute among the nations of the earth than any legislation that has ever before been put upon its statute books.

The annals of Ireland are full of tragedies. Her heroes are so intense, so loyal, to the point of self-sacrifice, that death loses its terror and is welcomed rather than defeat or disaster. The passing of Parnell adds another name to the list. Emmet, O'Connor, O'Reilly and how many more patriots and exiles are dear in Irish history and shrined in Irish song. If Ireland's freedom could be bought by the heart's blood of her children, then were the ransom long ago richly paid.

An old proverb says "A man has only to die to be praised." If a tithe of the commendation that fills the speech of the people and the papers could have fallen on Parnell's ears when they were quick to hear, he might not now be dead of a broken heart. The sins and sorrows of his private life, the human weakness that should have awakened pity was made the agent of his political destruction and no doubt of his death. Thus is the cruel and the tender side of humanity reversed like the magician's canvas; today a man who needs pity is hunted to his death by scorn, censure and abuse; tomorrow his bier is strewn with flowers, and words of praise are on every lip—kind words that would almost bring back sight to the closed eyes and hearing to the leaden ears. Is this strange trait in human nature innate, that is so universal, or is it a habit of thought and expression that has come to be a part of life. While it is always deprecated when it is too late, is it never to be corrected?

An able-bodied, Toledo citizen, riding into the city from his suburban home in a street car this morning was heard to remark to a man sitting next him, "I shall not vote this year; it is too much trouble."

The man who finds it too much trouble to perform the duties while he enjoys the privileges of citizenship in this country should emigrate to Russia or Turkey, where people are not bothered with individual responsibility. Such a man is both blind and selfish. He is not a loyal lover of his country. Presumably he is one of those who would want somebody thrust with a bayonet because so many southern negroes find it too much trouble to vote, while he voluntarily puts himself in the category with them. He is a blind man else he would see that the well-being of the country, and with that of himself and family, depends upon the intelligent ballot and the influence of honest citizens in politics. And he is doubly blind that he cannot see duty involved in the enjoyment of the benefits of a free, representative government. So long as neither he, nor his relatives are not running for office, and his business is not interfered with, he has no interest in the affairs of government.

There are too many of this class of citizens in every town in the United States, and this is why the worst element so often controls affairs that should be as sacred to men as their homes and their religion. And this is why we hear habitual expressions like "the mire of politics," "the filthy pool of politics," etc. There is no "mire" except as men will and suffer it to be.

It is not enough that business men, intent only on money-getting, feel assured that their interests will be guarded by partisans who make politics a "trade;" they are guilty, and unworthy the name of democrat or republican if they shirk their solemn duties to the government of their town, county, state or nation.

TYPESETTING MACHINES.

A Notable Contest to Take Place in Chicago.

Chicago Oct. 10.—A special committee of the Typothetæ, Newspaper Publishers' association, consisting of Col. Fred Perkins of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, C. H. Woodbridge of the Boston Herald, and Major W. J. Richards of the Philadelphia Ledger, will meet in this city the coming week to take charge of the Chicago Evening Post building.

The machines which will compete are the Mergenthaler linotype, the Rogers, Lippincott & Wells, the Hoffmann typesetting machine and the Scudder machine.

Commencing Monday, October 12, the Post will continue running the machines night and day for one week thereafter. During that time the machines will be on exhibition to the public and newspaper men generally. Newspaper proprietors and publishers in all parts of the country may be present during that week, and it is expected that a large number of publishers will take advantage of the opportunity to see the various machines at work together and make comparisons as to their merits and demerits.

The object of this test is to have the committee will have with them the foreman of their composing room, and the capacity of the machines for setting type will be thoroughly investigated.

At the same time there will be exhibited also a new method of stereotyping known as the cold stereotyping process, wherein plates are made with a pressure never before attained and without heating the type. It is probable that other mechanical appliances of interest to newspaper men will also be exhibited.

CALLS THE BABY RUTH.

Grover Cleveland Thanks People for Their Kindness.

New York, Oct. 10.—Ex-President Cleveland said in answer to an inquiry regarding the name of the newcomer in his home: "We have settled on a name and it is 'Ruth.' This was the name of Mrs. Cleveland's grandmother and has always been especially liked by her."

In connection with this publication of this item, which I hope will end much apparent curiosity on the subject, I desire to express my appreciation of the interest and tender interest in my child shown by good people everywhere throughout the country. We have received almost innumerable congratulations and remembrances.

"From the president of the United States and from many a humble citizen I have cordially felt tations. All this has been very gratifying and has been duly appreciated, but I see it will be impossible to acknowledge all these messages separately. I hope this public recognition will be accepted as sufficient."

One of the Nominees for Senator.

John W. Canary, of Bowling Green, the democratic nominee for state senator, has been in the city and attending the fair for the past two days, and has made a very favorable impression upon all whom he has met. Mr. Canary is a pleasant and cultivated gentleman; a deep student of political economy; well acquainted with the wants and needs of the people, and his election will insure a most able representative for the people of the district.—Findlay Courier.

Good Word for John Ryan.

The nomination of Hon. John Ryan, one of the democratic candidates for senator in the Toledo district, is one of the best selections that could be made. Mr. Ryan is a quiet, clear headed man whose influence is always felt, quite apart from numbers, because they know he possesses good judgement and sterling integrity.—Shelby County Democrat.

A Very Neat Compliment.

The Toledo Bee is one of the great papers of the United States. It has just removed into its own magnificent building specially adapted to its purposes, and now there is no better paper in Ohio than the Bee. And then it is genuinely democratic with no personal axes to grind.—The Massillonian.

A Bona Fide Census Wanted.

The Minnesota Farmers' alliance, in passing a resolution demanding "a bona fide census of the United States," seems to feel a lack of confidence in Mr. Porter. But Mr. Porter is used to that by this time.—St. Louis Republic.

The Coming Candidate's Chances.

Harrison is using cabinet berths to improve his chances. Cleveland's chances could not be improved.—Philadelphia Record.

Their Regular Occupation.

Gov. Campbell may be hard up, but the McKinley boys are flush. They have begun to fry the fat.—Boston Herald.

WHAT WE CAN EXPECT.

Prof. Foster's Interesting Letter on the Weather.

Cold Wave Next Week Followed by a Warm One.

October Storms Reviewed—How Frost Acts and Waves of Temperature Travel—Miscellaneous Information.

Copyright 1891 by W. T. Foster.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 9.—(Special to the Bee)—Frosts are important weather events, and the first frosts in the fall and the last in the spring are quite difficult to forecast. No single frost is sufficient to kill all tender vegetable growths in the same latitude, and where the ground is very dry frosts are not apt to occur. A frost may kill all vegetation in one spot and not touch anything a mile away. The cold waves are generally of limited area, running to a point toward the southeast, and it is not expected that a killing frost predicted to reach as far south as the thirty-sixth degree would affect vegetation along the whole line of that latitude.

I have calculated that the most important frost dates would be about October 10 or 11, 17 or 18, and November 2 or 3, and that the last date would entirely kill the cotton plant.

Clearing and cooler weather is expected in the Rocky Mountains on the 9th, the central valleys on the 11th, and the eastern coast on the 13th. A warm wave will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 12th, cross the central valleys about the 14th, and reach the Atlantic about the 16th.

My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from 7th to 11th, and the next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 13th, cross the great central valleys from 14th to 16th, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 17th. The center of low barometer of this storm wave will probably cross the Mississippi river about or north of St. Louis, and will develop its greatest force east of the river. Sharp frosts may be expected along the fortieth degree about one day after this storm center has passed.

The fourth storm wave of the month will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 19th, cross the central valleys from 20th to 22d, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 23d. This cool wave will cross the Rockies about the 15th, the central valleys about the 17th, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 19th.

Important Discoveries.

I hold that outer space is a vacuum as regards matter of a gross nature such as we find in our atmosphere, and is a plenum, full of subtle matter as electricity. Touching this subject, and especially advocating the electrical theory, I copy the following, read by Dr. Henry Raymond Rogers before the Chautauqua Society of Natural Science at Dunkirk, New York:

"In the year 1608 two great discoveries were made, two great inventions. The one made Galileo the brightest luminary in the scientific firmament, the other brought no reward to Metius, for his discovery and no honors. These inventions were the telescope and the lens of ice. The telescope astonished science and caused the church to tremble for its dogmas, and it opened to the view of man an infinity of worlds. The little lens made of ice, then as now uncomprehended, gave positive evidence of the fallacy of the accepted cosmical philosophy. In this fact is found its true significance today.

"That we may understand its teachings we must study its operations in the field of the rays of the sun. For example, the sun and earth are separated by the distance of 93,000,000 miles, and this space is infinitely cold and dark. The sun's rays as they pass through this infinity of distance and cold and darkness are visible. They reach out from the sun to our atmosphere without, in the slightest manner, heighting their presence. They contain neither warmth nor light. In fact, the temperature of universal ether is supposed to be situated by Secchi at 18,000,000 degrees below zero. The ice lens is able to gather these invisible an inconceivable cold sunrays and converge them to a focus and thereby set fire to combustibles, explode gunpowder and even to melt lead. It may not consistently be claimed that actual heat can cross the void of space, so cold or that actual light penetrates such utter darkness. The ice lens of Metius, therefore, furnishes the physical demonstration of the fact that the sun need not be actuated to put in force to warm the earth and that it need not be brought in order to supply its light. It most forcibly teaches that there is a something that incessantly comes over the sun which is not itself heat or light, but of which these are the direct effects. The legitimate inference from these teachings is that the so-called sunheat and sunlight are developed solely in our own atmosphere and not in the sun itself, as science and superficial appearances have ever led us to believe.

The Just Chastisement.

It is to the credit of Ohio republicans that many of them express a good deal of disgust with the attempts made to compass Gov. Campbell's defeat by calumniating his character and publishing lies about him. * * * * *

Every honorable man in Ohio owes it to his self-respect to rebuke with his vote this second attempt to ruin a public man in his private reputation and in his business for the sake of defeating him at the polls. The miscreants who resort to such devices can be chastised out of politics only by defeat so overwhelming that its significance cannot be mistaken.—N. Y. World.

CLUB AND SOCIAL.

What Is Offered for Entertainment and Instruction.

The Women's Colloquial club, an experiment undertaken a year ago by a few bright women, yesterday entered upon its second year's meeting with an attendance and program that warrants its being reckoned hereafter among the assured institutions, the permanent clubs, of this city of clubs.

Mrs. Dr. Munson was chairman of the meeting, and the essayist was Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, the subject of her essay "The Isabellan Period." Notwithstanding the number of papers the study of the Fifteenth century era has brought out Mrs. Segur gave a paper differing from all the rest, and of very great interest. The study she offered was of the character of Isabella and of the impress of that character upon her day and upon subsequent times. There is a proverb which reads "All roads lead to Rome," and it may not be an unfair criticism to say of Mrs. Segur's papers that they all lead to the defense of woman's equality with man. Isabella, whom she characterized as "the first woman's rights woman in history," she found a model mother, a devoted wife, a wise woman, and as queen a ruler without peer in her day.

The usual animated discussion followed the paper, participated in by Miss Law, Mesdames Munson, Allen, Fray, Cravens, Bentley and others. The day kindergarten rooms were filled with ladies, some of whom attended a Colloquial club meeting for the first time yesterday, and a number of whom put their names down for membership in the club. This enrollment is the only formality observed, as there are no fees in connection with membership.

Numerous signatures were also secured for a petition for equal suffrage for the sexes and still more to a petition for school suffrage for women. The ladies generally were of the opinion that six or three-fourths of our teachers are women, and every school child is as dear to his mother as to his father, women are entitled to and should receive that suffrage right which will enable them to vote for school directors and look after school sanitation by having their own representatives upon the school boards.

The next meeting will be in the same place, Friday afternoon, Oct. 23, paper by Mrs. Judge Harmon. Essayists at subsequent meetings will be Mrs. Charles Cravens and Mrs. Judge Bentley.

The Christian Endeavor societies of the city attended the meeting at Maumee last night. Most of them went by train, but the young people of the Central Congregational church chartered a 'bus.

The Ladies Shakespeare club will hold all its meetings this season with Mrs. F. P. Masters, 1405 Broadway. The opening meeting is held next Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Etta L. Case is preparing a paper on Queen Isabella, to be read before the Sarah C. I. S. C. of Dr. Facon's church. This is only one of a number of clubs to have essays on this subject, and it is probable study clubs devoted to research into the historic era of Queen Isabella's reign will be organized all over the city this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin entertain the Shakespeare club Monday evening next.

Mesdames Rosa L. Segur and Ellen S. Fray entertain the New Century club next Friday evening. Mr. Charles S. Ashley gives the paper. Subject: "Is Liberty Declining?"

The Woodbridge W. C. T. U. meets with Mrs. J. W. Callard, corner Elm and Erie streets, next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Matters in connection with the state convention will make this a very interesting meeting, and all members should be present.

THE UNCROWNED KING.

Mr. Parnell, in spite of the drawbacks of the past twelvemonth, leaves a memory which his countrymen will ever keep green.—Boston Herald.

To-day the news that he is dead will awaken no such unanimous and intense manifestation of Irish sorrow. Parnell lived too long for that. He has died young, prematurely it will even be said, still it is evident that he had outlived his highest fame and survived his proudest hour.—Boston Globe.

Parnell had survived usefulness, fame, noble aspirations and such a hold upon the hearts and hopes of men as it is given unto few men to secure. Sadness at thought of his death was discounted by sadness in the sense of his fall. Parnell does not die, as he once lived, an uncrowned king. Lately he has lived dethroned.—New York Telegram.

The days are rife with surprises. Death has effaced within a generation's period three consummate leaders, as in ordinary leaders. Balmaceda and Boulanger sought escape from despair in refuge. Parnell has escaped from the world naturally in an hour when his life was found up in a problem apparently insoluble the fate of his country. In his end its solution.—Chicago Herald.

The death of the great home ruler will tend to greatly simplify the situation in Ireland. It will remove a source of contention which divided the friends of common purpose, and will clear away all obstacles to future unity of action; and thus the giving up of a life which was bound to his private reputation and to his business for the sake of defeating him at the polls. The miscreants who resort to such devices can be chastised out of politics only by defeat so overwhelming that its significance cannot be mistaken.—N. Y. World.

Campaigning by libel is an Ohio idea which Foraker's experience of two years ago ought to have warned the republicans against.—New York World.

So They Think, Now.

BARBARA MOSS ABROAD.

A Visit to the Famous Gobelin Tapestry Weavers.

Pere Lachaise, the Morgue and Other Subjects.

The Tomb of Abelard and Heloise, the Shrine of Disappointed Love—Sketches of a First-Class and a Third-Class Funeral—Praise for American Women.

To see the Gobelin tapestry weavers, visit the morgue, Pere Lachaise and the Grand Opera (capitalized quite stunningly) in the evening, is a pretty full day's touring, with all sorts of conflicting emotions awakened. (A class of literary critics consider it so much the thing to decry "routine letters of travel" that he is almost inclined to begin every screed with an apology. But, whisper it, there is a rumor abroad that these critics are not themselves the blase travelers they assume to be. There is nothing new under the sun; everything written, said or builded is a new combination of old material and yet while this true, how little do we know, individually, of the wonderful world about us, both of the marvels in nature and the handiwork of man.

One of these self-elected mentors of the last number of "Literary Opinion" (English) says of Isabel Morris' "Summer in Kiel," which many of us have found a pleasant recital of everyday experiences: "She sees nothing, and does nothing that has not been done a hundred times before. * * * We ought to feel sincerely grateful to those who omit to write a book upon their travels afterwards." Just why the critic specifies "afterwards" one doesn't know except it be to tail out his sentence or fill out a line. The paid reviewer of books should never judge the general reader from his professional standpoint. What is his task is their pleasure and they have not his sated appetite. He complains that Miss Morris talks—in her book—so much about eating, he is led to wonder "if women are not more addicted to the pleasures of the table than a London alderman or an American special correspondent." An amusing classification, truly.) But this is not going to see the Gobelin weavers, and this, by no means, if you, dear Beecher, know all about everything and don't want to hear it told again, the miserable distressed English critic, need add any further. To me the day was full of interest, and of things to learn and remember.

It is difficult to determine wherein lies the fascination of tapestry and it is something to have one's curiosity satisfied and at the same time the fascination not satisfied. In the first place I had supposed that the name was somehow kin to our "goblin," and was invested with some sort of witchery. Not at all. A dying establishment originated by Jean Gobelin in the middle of the fifteenth century gave the name and when the wonderful tapestry weaving was added to the works, government bought the whole enterprise and Louis XIV decided that it should be the only one of its kind unrivalled in the world, that its products should never be put on the markets, but should be used only in state apartments and as gifts and souvenirs to royal guests, one to another, and as souvenirs to highly respected foreign ambassadors. And such it is to-day. In connection with it is a carpet factory, established by Marie de Medici, governed by the same rules. Thus the pearl of royalty is upon a soft and wonderfully beautiful fabric whose touch the feet of ordinary mortals may never know.

Just how long the republic will foster these royal prerogatives is a question. But when one looks upon the exquisitely wrought products of these looms, one hopes that the Gobelin weavers may be the last vestige to be disturbed.

The old building was nearly destroyed by the communists in 1871, but so highly is the difficult work prized, the choicest part of the collection had been removed and was saved; though seventy pieces were destroyed.

We enter a long, wide hall, or corridor with windows upon one side and a succession of upright looms along the other.

Upon the threads are begun, as in ordinary weaving, the design of the picture which is being copied is traced in chalk lines, and the operator is on the reverse side, his only shuttle the weaver's needle. The extreme nicety and fabulous value of a tapestry may be understood, when we are told that an area of six square inches is all the most expert workman can accomplish in a day. Of course it is all copied work and the paintings of the great masters done in these fine tools have a softness that is even more pleasing to the eye than the work of the brush, and the reproduction as to color and expression is exact. The picture which he is copying is at one side of the workman and his balls of properly hued wools are in a large basket before him. From the visitors' side one sees only the needle come through and leave its imperceptibly fine stitch. A peep behind the scenes shows the paraphernalia of the work and looks to the uninitiated like a highly colored confusion. The workmen are not very gracious; they don't like to be stared at, besides the closest attention to their work is required. One pert Yankee maiden, who slipped behind a loom and began to haul over the worsteds and ply the weavers with questions was sharply reprimanded and it was just what she deserved.

In the exhibition rooms we see the finished work, copies from Raphael's paintings and those of dozens more artists scarcely less famous. There are, also, specimens of Persian, Flemish and Egyptian tapestry, but the work of the Gobelins excels them all in beauty and finish. Now I understand why the queens had their apartment walls hung with tapestries rather than the finest paintings. It has all the color and expression and a warmth of color and a softness that the originals could not give to the walls, and only kings and queens could indulge in the luxuries. In one of the apartments of Napoleon III. at Fontainebleau is hung a sylvan scene, by a renowned artist of the brush and opposite, its exact reproduction in silk-and-wool tapestry. It is hard to decide which is which, and the more beautiful. In one of the same suite of rooms is a sofa and a number of chairs, done in similar soft plushy materials and these are accounted the most sumptuous pieces of furniture shown in any of the royal palaces.

The largest piece in loom now is being done by order of the government for the national library with appropriate representations.

On our way to Pere Lachaise we saw "a white funeral." It was of a young woman, an upper class funeral. The hearse was an open one of pure white, and from each corner column, like long, slender posts to a bed, were suspended two broad white satin ribbons, three yards or more in length. Maidens dressed in white and wearing white veils and wreaths, walked and held loosely the ends of these floating ribbons. The casket of white cloth was literally buried in flowers, while about the outside, everywhere but on the white wheels, were hung the crystal funeral wreaths, the making of which is one of the industries of Paris. These are made of small crystal beads on fine wires, and the effect at a little distance is of flowers covered with frost. Purple is the only color used. In this instance they were all white.

Following the maidens in white were a number of priests in their long black robes, then others, walking, and a few carriages. In funeral trains in France there are many who walk, and their place is always next the hearse. The men on the streets always stop and remove their hats when a funeral passes, and the women make a reverential pause in their going and coming. The silent respect shown this white funeral procession was very impressive. They were not going to Pere Lachaise. There are twenty-two cemeteries inside Paris limits, and to bury in Pere Lachaise means either great wealth or national fame.

As we approach the historic burial place we come upon marble monument shops, conservatories of natural flowers and shops where the windows are a mass of delicate white and heliotrope purple—the funeral wreaths aforesaid. Then there is a prison on either hand with a public place of execution between. The prison de la Roquette was the scene of a terrible tragedy during the communists' "reign of terror."

The French are strangely superstitious about cemeteries. They are surrounded by stone walls above which only the tops of trees and of monumental shafts are visible. The iron gates are as heavy as those which bar the entrance to a moated castle, whether to keep the dead in or the living out deponent sayeth not. Everything here seems to be built with thought of defense in time of war or an uprising, and with reason, obviously. Russian and French troops fought a battle in Pere Lachaise in the war early in the century, and the Communists and government troops met here in a death struggle in 1871.

The most inconsiderable dwellings and business places are in the surrounding vicinity, occupied by renters of small means. We are told that Paris requires upwards of a hundred graves daily. The poor are buried by the government in divisions which are called the "Fosses Communes"—the common pits. Each of these pits takes about fifty coffins, and a certain number of frames will buy a guaranty that the body shall not be disturbed for a limited number of years. Fifty francs (ten dollars) will pay for a five years' "concession." And what becomes of them then? Perhaps the ghastly galleries of the catacombs or the furnaces of the fertilizer factories may tell. Perhaps (and the thought is a pleasanter one), the bed of the Seine is paved with human ivory. The French speak of first, second and third-class funerals as naturally as they do of railway compartments and station waiting rooms thus classified.

Pere Lachaise in named for the Jesuit confessor of Louis XIV., whose country estate of something more than a hundred acres, once occupied this eminence. The first thought upon entering is of the thick populousness of the place and the crowding of monuments. You leave the broad avenues and thread your way, single file, among the distinguished dead of France whose narrow sleeping places are honored by some of the most exquisite marbles the hands of the sculptor ever wrought. It takes four hours to make a continuous tour of the place, and as we decide not to do this, we are amused somewhat at the selections the guide makes for his party of Americans. First we pause at the square, lichen-covered granite tomb which hides the grave of Rachel, the queen of tragedy "of her time and of all times," said our French-English guide, in a very musical mix of both languages. "And," said he, "there is no one now to approach her, as, possibly you may know, but Madame Bernhardt, who is at present in America." Her grave was purple with the crystal wreaths. Then we pause at the gothic-canopied sarcophagus of Abelard and Heloise, upon which are recumbent statues of the ill-starred lovers. Bouquets of lovely natural flowers are laid about the figures.

These tokens are always found in numbers on this shrine of disappointed love," explains the guide, "and I heard this sentimental story from childhood and now beheld its verification.

Of the twenty thousand monuments in the crowded place, nearly every one of which lifts aloft a distinguished in national, if not in the world's history, the next shrine at which we drop a metaphorical tear is the elaborate one of the Rothschild, founder of the house of Rothschild, this in deference to American homage to monered wealth, I suppose. The grave of Marshal Ney is always an every French guide's list; what is Nelson is in English history, Ney is to the French. We pass the graves and monuments of Beranger, the poet; La Place, the mathematician; Alfred de Musset, upon whose tomb is a tablet inscribed with lines of his own composing; the bronze column to the memory of Edmund About and pause to reread in marble the pathetic story of Count La Bedoyere, colonel of a regiment, who went over to Napoleon on his return from Elba, and who was condemned to death for what, at the moment, constituted treason. He made his escape and arranged to sail for America and would have saved himself by so doing, had he not crept back into Paris the night before the intended voyage for a farewell meeting with his wife and child. He was recaptured and shot.

This is one interesting peculiarity of the French; their memorials or placards tell one of the incidents or deeds which make the fame of the one remembered worthy such honor. The English and the American assume that the passer-by knows all history and biography, and consider it undignified to condescend to detail. The only gloomy rain that has come upon us in all France began to fall and we hastened to the gate-keeper's lodge to escape it.

A sight of Pere Lachaise had dispelled many illusions. It is beautiful in location and exquisite sculpture. But these sermons in stone are written for the ages. Just roof over Pere Lachaise, remove the distinguished dead hither from Montmartre and Montparnasse, and the Westminster Abbey of France is here. Sunday next, the body of ex-President Grevy, who died last night, will be laid to rest here, or in the crypt at the Pantheon, it seems not to be decided which. There will be a great funeral. A stupid first-class "last excursion" is an elaborate affair. We were privileged to witness the outdoor portion of one which took place at Montparnasse church and cemetery. The front of the church from the gothic arches over the great doors was hung with black cloth bordered with white stars and fringe. About the arches were festoons of black set with full white crepe rosettes. The pagoda-like hearse was mantled in the same manner, and purple crystal wreaths were piled upon and hung about it in the most prodigal profusion. The big black horses were covered with the black, white-starred cloths, the tassel-fringe of which nearly brushed the street stones. Their heads were decked with black tassels and white rosettes and black ribbons were carried over the flowing manes. Some sort of a crest or coat of arms in black and white decorated the hearse cloth on the driver's box, and the same sign appeared on all of the long line of carriages.

A great number of priests, their long black mantles girdled with broad silk sashes, edged with fringe a quarter of a yard deep, followed the gorgeous hearse, then a body of men in black, of some order, ecclesiastical or otherwise, then the carriages. A band of musicians, correspondingly decorated with black and white crepe, stationed a little way from the church doors, played a funeral march as the procession moved down the avenue, but did not accompany it.

As if in contrast to all this pomp and circumstance, followed almost on its heels came an open government funeral wagon bearing the plain painted coffin of a child which was on the way to the "fosses communes," which now in every instance adjoin cemeteries outside the city limits. Behind the black wagon trudged a poor woman decently fitted out in black, with cheap black lace covering the habitual white cap, which placed her somewhere in the ranks of the peasant laborers. She gave little means of sorrow and a cluster of sympathizers, chiefly women, kept near her in solitude constantly, kept near her in silence and with an attempt at order of march. At the cemetery gates, the long sad journey ended, two chaplains gratuitously read the burial service and the third-class funeral is concluded.

"I wonder," said the artist-friend who walked with me—two years a resident of Paris and so able to explain many he customs and ceremonies—"I wonder if they find first, second and third class written over the portals of 'My Father's house of many mansions?"

Because the morgue figures in so many tales of French fiction, we confessed to a morbid curiosity to glance at the place, notwithstanding the guide leaf says "the exceptions who are attracted to the painful scene are chiefly of the lower orders." The small, common-looking building stands at the end of the Pont de la Cite and was erected and dedicated to its present use not quite thirty years ago. The partition which divides the visitors' passage way from the line of the dead stretched upon their marble slabs, which incline, to give full view of the body, is of glass entire, and through this we gaze at the poor wretches who by choice or accident were couched in the silvery Seine for their last long sleep. There were three bodies on the slabs awaiting identification. They are decently composed, their clothing arranged as life-like as possible, and really, beyond the horrible sensations I expected would come over me, I felt that the provision was most humane and Christian. So perfect is the refrigerating plan bodies are sometimes kept quite intact for three months, before they are opened upon abuttery, where there stood ranged in a row six vases of wine. One folding table and two chairs served for their wants, because they were not rich enough to entertain their friends.

A ladder led to the upper room, which was an attic or garret, built of wood and thatched with rush. Here was the bed with a mattress, three feather beds and two pillows. A great wooden coffer held their household gear; here were six blankets and one sarse, a coverlet with shields of sendale, a kind of thin silk, eight linen sheets, four table cloths. The clothes, which were laid in chests or hung upon the wall, consisted of three surcoats of worsted and ray; one coat with a hood of perset or peach-colored cloth, and another of worsted; two robes of perset; one of medley, furred; one of scarlet, furred; a great robe of sendale with edging; one camise and half a dozen save-napes or apron.

One perceives that the inventory omits many things. Where, for instance, were the hosen and the shoon? For kitchen utensils there were brass pots, a grate and irons, basins, washing vessels, a tripod, an iron horse, an iron spit, a frying-pan, a funnel, two ankers, or tubs, etc. They had one candlestick "of latton," two plates, an aumbrey, or cabinet or small cupboard; curtains to hang before the doors to keep out the cold, cushions and a green carpet, and for the husband a haketon, or suit of leather armor, and an iron headpiece.

Of knives, forks, wooden plates, cups, glasses, or drinking measures there is nothing said at all. But it is evident that the house was provided with everything necessary for solid comfort; plenty of kitchen vessels, for instance, and plenty of soft feather beds, blankets, pillows, curtains and sheets.

Every morning at 6 o'clock, after a hunch of bread, a substantial slice of cold meat, and a pull at the black-jack of small ale, Hugh le Bevere walked off to his day's work. Then Alice, left at home, washed and scoured, made and mended, cooked the dinner, talked to the neighbors, and, when all was done, sat in the doorway enjoying the sunshine and spinning busily.

They had been married but a short time. There were no children. Then—one knows nothing; no one must judge harshly; there may have been jealousy; there may have been cause for jealousy; perhaps the woman had a tongue the sharpness of the fourteenth century tongues were cruelly sharp; perhaps the man had a temper uncontrolled, in that century there were many such; but no one knows, and, again, we must not judge—then, I say, the end came, suddenly and without warning. When it was all over, some of the neighbors thought that they had heard high words and a smothered shriek, but they could not affirm; we have heard what probably happened.

In the morning Hugh le Bevere went not forth to his work as usual; Alice did not open the door; the shutters remained closed. The neighbors thought there was to unswept. They sent for the alderman, who came with his sergeants, and broke open the door. Alas! alas! They found the body of Alice lying stark and dead upon the floor; beside her, grim and ghastly, with what fast and haggard eyes, and the evidence of his crime, the knife itself, lying where he had thrown it.

They haled him to the lord mayor's court. They questioned him. He made no reply at first, looking as one distraught; when he spoke, he refused to plead. For this, in later times, he would have been passed to death. What was done to him was almost as bad; for they took him to Newgate, and shut him up in a cell with penance, that is to say, on bread and water, until he died.

This done, they buried Alice, with requiems and made the inventory of all the chattels, which the city confiscated, and sold for 12 pounds, 18 shillings, a piece out of which, no doubt, they sold for the funeral of the woman and the penance of the man.

MILLS, OF TEXAS,

Fully Discusses the Vital Question of the Day,

Before an Immense Assemblage of Toledoans

Gathered at Memorial Hall Last Night—Masterly Presentation of the People's Side—Frank Hurd Receives an Ovation—Capt. Bell Speaks.

It was a rousing rally.

Memorial hall has seldom if ever held so large or so enthusiastic an assemblage as that which packed it to the doors last evening to hear Roger Q. Mills and Capt. G. W. Bell, the eloquent exponents of tariff reform.

The burning words of the three speakers, Hurd, Mills and Bell, evoked unbounded enthusiasm, and the hall resounded again and again with deafening cheers.

When Charman Parkes Hone, accompanied by the distinguished speakers, entered, there was a generous round of applause, but it was when Hon. Frank H. Hurd, as chairman of the evening, stepped to the front of the platform that the old-time cheers of years ago shook the building. Hurd, although out of politics, still holds a warm place in the hearts of the Lucas county democracy, and his voice is now as ever, potent to enthuse a Toledo audience as no other voice can.

Mr. Hurd spoke briefly on the progress which the cause of tariff reform has made in the United States during the past 10 years. It was the student and professor in our colleges who dared express thoughts favorable to tariff reform. There were few public men who dared favor it, and fewer still who dared to avow publicly their opposition to the detestable protective system. Protection was the fixed policy of the government. The voice of labor had been silenced, and the purse of the manufacturer was more potent than the voice of justice and of right. In those days he (Hurd) was pointed at as a free trader, an enemy of American labor and American industries. He was looked upon as a crank and disturber. The people seemed to prefer to wear the chains of commercial slavery, and the days looked dark and discouraging for the cause of commercial liberty.

Reform measures were defeated one after the other, and the leaders, hopeless and discouraged, were forced back while the opponents fattened on the substance extorted and revelled in the wealth stolen from the people. But suddenly there was an awakening, and like the writing in Balshazzar's dream the revelers were warned in the midst of the robber banquet that a change had come. By the courage of that noble democrat, Grover Cleveland—and the hall rang with cheers at the mention of Cleveland's name—the cause of tariff reform had sprung to the front, and so successful was it that in the following campaign three-fourths of the states of the union had publicly endorsed it. He looked with confidence to the overthrow of the chief apostle of protection, McKinley. All honor to Grover Cleveland, who, in the interest of the welfare of the people, had been willing to sacrifice his own personal interests.

Out of the wreck of defeat Cleveland rose triumphantly to lead another charge which he believed would result in the capitulation of the citadel of protection and the opening of the way to a freer and fairer trade, and the American flag would be known and respected on every sea.

In those early days of darkness and discouragement there were three men who stood by nobly together and never lost or gave up hope. They were ever on the alert, and although without outside help or outside sympathy, and often assailed by those whom they would benefit, they stood by their posts. Contumely and ridicule were heaped upon them, yet they kept the faith and transferred to those who would ultimately reap the rich reward. These three men were Wm. R. Morrison, of Illinois, (cheers), John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, (cheers)' and Roger Q. Mills, of Texas. (Great cheering.)

It was his privilege and pleasure to welcome Mr. Mills. He welcomed him not only for his fidelity to commercial liberty, but also for the friendship and assistance rendered him in (the speaker) the days when oppressed by his enemies he knew not where to turn. In grateful remembrance of those priceless services, he welcomed him. He had the pleasure of introducing the brilliant scholar, the eloquent statesman and intrepid democrat, Roger Q. Mills.

Mills' Great Speech.

When Mr. Mills arose the hall resounded with a storm of cheers.

Ladies and fellow citizens, began Mr. Mills, I am conscious that I stand tonight in the presence of an active, energetic commercial community. As his friend (Mr. Hurd) had said, the battle of tariff reform was still on, and it was proposed to fight it out. The result of the Ohio election was being watched with eager eyes. The two parties into which Ohio was divided were each invoking the assistance of the people in accomplishing their respective ends. The republicans would restrict, depress and strangle trade. The democrats asked for a larger liberty, lower taxes, freer trade and higher wages. By restricting importation, said the speaker, you restrict exportation. The surplus must be exchanged. Mr. McKinley had asked him why the foreign people were so opposed to the McKinley bill. He would tell him. It was because the people of Europe desired to exchange their surplus glass, woolens, etc., for the surplus butter and general farm products of Ohio, and the McKinley bill forbade them to do this. Why is it that President Harrison has been on his knees, asking for the restoration of the American hog on the German table? Why, because the people of Ohio desired a market for their surplus American hog.

High duties restrict consumption, and that restricts importation, and that lowers the price of exported articles both in the home and foreign market. Who are the persons who are exporting our thousand millions of product annually? From 75 to 80 per cent. of that product is from the farm—cotton, breadstuffs, provisions and others. One-half of our people live on farms and by farm labor. It is the industry upon which all industries stand. When it is prosperous, all are prosperous; and when it is distressed every nerve in the whole industrial system feels the pain. For all the years of our history we have been raising a surplus of farm products which we had to send to foreign markets and which we could only sell in foreign markets by exchanging them for the surplus products of foreign people. If we shut out their products we at the same time shut ours in, and, having largely more than our wants require, the price necessarily falls so that the high duties which keep out the foreign goods and put down the prices of the domestic goods and put down the prices of agricultural products.

The republicans say, send our surplus abroad and get in return silver and gold. Let us see how that would work. There is in the world $8,000,000,000 of gold and silver. Our exports were such that in seven years America would have all the gold and silver in the world.

Nearer Nature's Laws.

The democratic idea of commercial liberty was nearer to the laws of nature than any other, and therefore was nearer right and justice. The republican would dry up the ocean and the lakes and enclose the land with a wall. We cannot build glass houses and raise coffee in Ohio, but we can raise wool,

"WHY IS PRESIDENT HARRISON NOW PLEADING FOR THE AMERICAN HOG?"

butter, etc., and exchange it for coffee grown in Brazil. We cannot raise tea in Ohio, but China can, and in exchanging surplus products with China we are simply conforming to the laws of nature. It was the design of God not to isolate nations or countries, but to consolidate the people of the world into a vast brotherhood. The republicans talk of making us independent. It was not the design of the creator to make one people independent of another.

Reduces Wages.

The policy of protection, he said, reduces the wages of labor, shuts the laborer out from employment, paralyzes production, restricts consumption and plunges the country into the depth of distress—this is the cause of all our troubles, and to this we should direct all our thoughts and use all the power with which we are invested to remove it. Because the people do not count down the dollars they pay to the tax collector, and see and know just how much they pay the supporters of this iniquitous system, relying upon the ignorance of the people, make bold to say that duties levied on imported goods are not taxes. Last year we imported $480,000,000 of taxable goods, which paid at the custom houses $220,000,000, which is now in the United States treasury; does not that look like taxation? The government did not borrow this money; it was a tax paid on the imported goods by somebody, either the purchaser, the middleman, or the consumer. The foreign producer did not pay it; for it cost him more than $400,000,000 for labor and material to make them. His profit on them was less than $80,000,000, and he certainly could not pay $220,000,000 to make $80,000,000. One year of such business would close every manufacturing establishment in the world. The importer bought the goods in the foreign market, paid transportation, insurance, and other charges and then paid the taxes at the custom house, and added all costs and expenses to the goods, and sold them to the wholesale merchant. Did he sell them without adding the tariff tax of $220,000,000? He would be doing a very remunerative business if his profits amounted to 25 per cent. or $120,000,000. But he could not continue in business if he paid $220,000,- 000 to get $120,000,000. If this was the result of importation, the business would stop all over the world. It would bankrupt everyone engaged in it in one year. So the consumer has it to pay, and he cannot transfer it to anyone. It is like every other charge incurred in the making and moving of goods from the producer to the consumer. The taxpayer does not know how much insurance on the goods he pays, how much charges for commission, or what were the profits of the wholesale or retail merchants, but he pays every charge over the merchant's counter when he buys the goods. The importer advances it at the custom house and charges it on the goods when he sells to the wholesale dealer. The wholesale dealer advances it and charges it on the goods when he sells to the retail dealer. The retail dealer advances it and charges it on the goods when he sells to the consumer, and when the consumer buys he pays all the charges.

ATTITUDES OF CAPT. BELL

But you may say that is correct as far as foreign goods are concerned, but American goods are not taxed. It is true they are not taxed, but the taxation of the foreign goods fixes the price at which they must be sold. When they are imported they must be sold at a price that will cover all cost of production, transportation and taxation. That price is the market price of the American product of the same kind. There cannot be two markets prices for the same thing. If the American manufacturer undersold the importer he could not import; if the importer undersold the manufacturer he would be driven from the market. They must both sell at the same price, in order to do business in the same market. If this were not the case the American manufacturer would not ask congress to impose high duties or any duties. He demands high duties to protect him against competition with the foreign products. High duties will make the foreign products still higher in the market and that enables him to sell higher and to have larger margin for profit.

A Healthy Infant.

Col. Mills' humorous description of the infant, Protection, evoked much laughter. One hundred years ago it asked 5 per cent protection for a temporary period. Then came with demands for an advance to 10 to 40, until it had reached a point where it asked and received 100 per cent. It seems the older he gets the weaker he gets. There was more in it than in Col Sellers' eye-salve, which had such an effect that the more it was used the more it was needed. The infant promised to put a pig iron furnace by the side of every pig pen in the country, but adopted at the beginning of our government it was declared to be temporary. It was to help for a few years the infant American industries. It was to hasten to maturity, when it was promised that it would be able to stand by itself. Alexander Hamilton said that the continuance of bounties on manufactures long established was one of questionable policy. Mr. Clay said that the theory of protection supposed that after a certain time the protected industry would be able to stand against foreign competition. But these infants of 100 years are not yet grown, and instead of getting stronger they grow weaker with increased protection. The temporary protective duty that started at less than 10 per cent has now become a permanent protective duty of 45 per cent, and it is still demanding more protection to keep it alive. The tax paid by the people today is greater than that paid during our civil war, and it is still growing larger.

The only hope of heading off the infant was to vote the democratic ticket.

McKinley's Change of Heart.

It was evident that Major McKinley has had a change of heart. He admitted it when he introduced the drawback clause in his bill. He recognizes when he gave the domestic sugar grower 2 cents a pound in lieu of 2 cents protection which the tariff removed when sugar was placed on the free list. They recognized that fact when they gave the manufacturer a duty on wool and other materials to compensate him for advancing the tax when he buys his raw material. They recognized it when they granted him a drawback of duty paid on materials when he manufactures and exports them. Protective tariffs provide for relying everybody but the American consumer, for him there is no compensation, no rebate, no drawback, and no relief.

An illustration of this may be seen from the fact that the woolen manufacturer who pays 11 cents a pound on wool and gets a rebate of 44 cents on the manufactured goods re-exported. Supposing only one-half the wool thus manufactured is sent out, the home consumer is obliged to pay the 44 cents per pound just the same. The only way to change this system of high-handed robbery is to vote the ticket with the rooster at the top of it. The system of protection was opposed to the laws of nature, of justice and of god.

A Vain Appeal.

Speaking of the alleged benefits of the McKinley bill, Mr. Mills asked anyone who has been benefited by the bill to rise (Not a man stood up.) A few days ago, he said, he had visited a republican stronghold where wages had been reduced 10 per cent. since the McKinley bill went into operation.

The speaker gave an excellent illustration of the disastrous effects of the tariff on wages. A Toledo manufacturer makes woolen goods at $1 a yard and he exchanges with a Michigan farmer for wheat at a dollar a bushel. Say a dollar represents a day's wages—it is more than the average paid in America. They exchange even, the woolen manufacturer goes to Washington and gets a duty put on of 100 per cent, and the farmer is obliged to give two bushels of wheat, $2, or two day's work for $1 worth of cloth. In other words protection robs him of a day's work.

The average wages paid in this country last year was $248—less than a dollar a day. They say the tariff is not a tax. Add 25 per cent. to the workman's necessities of life, and you reduce his wages to 33 1-3 cents a day. Add 100 per cent., as in the case of Sumatra tobacco, and you reduce his wages to 16 2-3 cents a day.

By increasing consumption you increase production, by increasing production you increase the demand for labor, by increasing the demand for labor you raise the wages of labor. To do this you must vote the democratic ticket.

Fifty years ago there were but two millionaires in America, to-day there are 10,000. Thirty years ago there were no tramps, to-day there are over a million in America. Protection makes the rich richer and the poor poorer.

Europe had become a slave market wherein the American millionaire can sell his daughter for a title—a title won as the result of the foul murder and robbery, perhaps, of an innocent rentle. We want no titles here. We want no laws that create an American aristocracy.

Bring back the time, the days when hearts throbbed with the spirt of American independence. Do it by voting the democratic ticket.

Return to the simple laws of olden times by voting for democratic representatives who will vote for democratic United States senators. Vote the democratic ticket.

The speaker concluded with an eloquent appeal to vote the democratic ticket from top to bottom. The speech was punctuated throughout with cheers, and at the conclusion the speaker sat down amid a hurricane of applause.

Captain Bell's Address.

Mr. Hurd then introduced Captain Geo. W. Bell, who spoke for half an hour. Mr. Bell is one of the ablest tariff orators that has ever visited Ohio. His logical arguments are unanswerable. Clear, concise and replete with humor, his address was listened to with the closest attention and marked with applause often repeated and long continued.

His arraignment of the protectionists was fierce. Protraying the birth and growth of protection he referred to it as an infant that demanded more nourishment the older it grew.

It was late before Captain Bell finished, and the audience which was growing restive began to move. Time and space forbids a more extended notice of Mr. Bell's masterly address.

The Domestic Problem Forever Unsettled.

A Tired Housekeeper Wants Advice —Some Good Original Poetry —Over Our Teacups."

GOD KNOWS.

Where, where are they going with hurrying feet,
Forms that are passing to-night on the street?
Faces all sunny and faces all sad,
Hearts that are weary and hearts that are glad;
Eyes that are heavy with sorrow and strife,
Eyes that are glistening with beauty and life;
Pictures of pleasure, crosses of care,
Going, all going. God only knows where.

Hands that have earnestly striven for bread,
Hands that are soiled with dishonor, instead;
Hearts that are turned to a purpose sublime,
Hearts all discordant and jangled with crime;
Souls that are pure as the flowers that blow,
Souls that are black as the midnight of woe,
Gay in their gladness or drunk in despair,
Going, all going, God only knows where.

Some to the feast where the richest red wine
And rarest of jewels will sparkle and shine;
Some in their hunger will wander, and some
Will sleep, nor awake when morning shall come;
The robed and the ragged, the foe and the friend,
Are all of them hurrying on to the end.
Nearing the grave with a curse or a prayer.
Going, all going, God only knows where.

Toledo. Carrie Meyers.

WHAT THEY SEEMED TO SAY.

I went in the early morning,
Just at the break of day,
While the dew was on the flowers,
To gather a fresh bouquet.

A bumble bee buzzed around me,
This was what he seemed to say:
"We're growing old, we're growing old."
Alack-a-day.

I sat me down at the organ,
Struck a chord in a minor key
And, as I listened a moment
It seemed to say to me:
"We're growing old, we're growing old
As fast as ever we can"—
No use to cry, to go and die
Is the only other plan.

At noon I went to the station
To meet a friend on the train,
As the engine came puffing and blowing
It echoed the same refrain:
"We're growing old, we're growing old,"
It said it again and again.

The little clock on the mantel
Kept ticking and ticking away,
As faded the early twilight,
And that seemed plainly to say:
"We're growing old, we're growing old,"
Alack-a-day.

Thus often am I reminded
Where ever I chance to stray
That time is passing, passing,
And with it we're passing away.
Adrian Mich. L. C. H.

The Household hostess must express her obligation for the kind letters that have come to hand saying "do not shut the doors; you do not know how we prize the weekly chat, how entertaining and helpful it is," and better than all, they declare their intention of giving to its columns fuller evidence of their appreciation.

A postscript should have been added to the screed of last week, thanking the faithful ones who have staid with us "through summer's heat and winter's snow." It is gratifying to be told that they have been richly repaid for the occasional half hour thus passed. Patience, Elizabeth, "E. F. G.," Emilie, "L. C. H." and others as worthy, might be mentioned. We've a new door bell, and the oftener it rings on our reception day the happier we shall be.

THE DOMESTIC PROBLEM.

An editorial writer in the Chicago Herald tells the whole truth about "the domestic problem," or believes that he does. Summed up, it is to the effect that the line of social demarkation between the maid's work in the kitchen and all other employment is the sole reason why kitchens are empty of competent help and the streets are crowded with shop girls seeking employment at any wage. Madame takes her sewing woman into her carriage and even addresses her market woman in equality speech; it is only the girl who cooks and serves her food (and who is an accomplished person if she does this well) who is made to feel her menial position at every turn and corner. There is suspicion that the Herald woman strikes the ax at the root of the difficulty.

One may be glad American women and girls have this spark of independence, but sorry that it flares up on occasions "when there is no draft." I believe there is a streak of dawn in the growing custom of hiring by the day and the job. Then the worker feels . . . she belongs to herself when her hours are over. A woman (or man) to sweep and dust and do it in the best possible manner, another to wash and iron and scrub and go her way (this is already established custom), another to do the family mending; good "home" bake shops such as they are in Toledo and every other city where excellent viands may be had—these are factors in the new dispensation. Of course this involves the necessity of the mistress of the house being a practical sort of a person and sufficiently in love with her husband and family to be glad to oversee and order her household and put into it the best efforts of her life.

Then there is another thing which need not be said in a whisper, and this is it. It takes two persons to make housekeeping successful—the husband as well as the wife must be concerned. A little mixing of interests is beneficial; the wife should know more of her husband's business and he should know more about hers—in fact, the "partnership" should be complete.

It is a problem in addition and division that is not yet solved. If it be true that the woman or the man has no domestic tastes, then they should set about adjusting their lives according to some other plan, agreed to make the best of it. But a woman without "domesticity" is an anomaly. The trouble is she allows herself to drift into the ways of a slave to her family, and they, unconsciously, accept the sacrifice. It's small wonder that housewives cannot fix the balances for the serving maid; they cannot do it for themselves. Too often they are either utterly incompetent or slavishly devoted.

* * * *

The country home-keeper will say the "new dispensation" has in it no hope for her. She cannot get help either by the day or the week. In the thickly settled parts of the country, this need not be true. The music teacher, the seamstress and the "peddler" are everywhere among the country homes; the housecleaner and caterer may not be far away. What is best to do—what must be done, can be done. The farmer must have his help at any cost; so must the farmer's wife, above all, and she should insist upon it, in justice to herself and her family.

Confession Good for the soul.

Dear Household Bee:

That little cheerly heart threat in last Saturday's paper, that the good times we have had in our "department" for the last seven years might come to an end and the door be bolted against us, brings me into the waiting room in hot haste. Don't do it; the household has a noble mission that is not yet fulfilled. We will be better "girls," if you just wont send us home. Everything you said was true, but please be patient with us. We've a little corner in our humble home that would be vacant if you were to disappear.

I want advice. I am tired, and so many duties, absolute duties are tugging at my apron strings I don't know what way to turn first. The fruit is on the cellar shelves, with the cans wrapped in blue paper all right, the summer fly-specks are washed away, the carpets dusted and the mirrors polished, but the fall sewing is scarcely begun (lucky for me we haven't had any falls), the house plants are out for the frost to catch, I owe all my friends and relations a visit, and I just can't call, anything new and good to get for breakfast, dinner or supper.

I felt so burdened when I sat down to tell you about it, I couldn't help complaining, but, somehow, the list of duties is not formidable written out, and I feel rested already. I guess be what is meant by one of those old philosophers who say it does the heart good to tell its grievances to another, and this is one of the helps of the Household—we may come grumbling, if we want to, and find some other body with tired hands and feet to sympathize with us; then we "get better."

OCTOBER.

"Bending above the spicy woods which blaze,
Are skies as blue they flash and hold the sun
Immeasurably far; the waters run
Yet slower, so freighted are the river ways
With gold of harvest; golden globes from the maze
Of frosty chestnuts, clicking one by one,
Escape from satin burs; her fringes done
The gentian spreads them out in sunny days,
And like late revelers at dawn, the chance
Of one sweet, mad, last hour, all things assail.
And conquering, flush and spin; while to entrance
The spell, by sunset door, wrapped in a veil
Of red and purple mists, the summer pale
Steals hurried, alone for one more song and dance."

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

A pretty picture, but one wonders if it is not the printer who is to blame for "satin" chestnut burs.

Hankers After Society.

Please, Ma'am, I hain't got no new tin pans, but if you want to help wimmin I want to git in my sassity; I've asked every body; some said git Ward McAllister's book; he'll tell you. Well I borrowed that, he just keeps telling of his folks how mighty fine they was and says "I myself had a right good time. I danced with the prettiest gal," but he don tell nobody else how to git in. Says he "you must have lots of money and be pedite," then, when them Mothers begged him to git their gals to go, he says, No! can't nohow. I know lots more wants to git in cause they aint got nothing else to do." What a good time Ward's coachman and waiter had that night they eat up all the good things. I'm glad they had a good square meal once aint you? Ward says he horrored lots of things, don't you think its mean to splurge on horrored things? Ill be glad if you will tell me just how to git into sassity.

An Author's Opinion.

Although I am not a partisan, I will say that I have never heard an argument against woman suffrage that seemed to me to have any logical basis.

Women exercise immense political power, only we don't see it. This secret, hidden, irresponsible influence is not the best way to use power. Women should be held to their political responsibility by the exercise of the franchise. There is something fine and noble and bracing in being thus lifted up and made to face one's responsibilities.

Suffrage should be urged upon women as a duty, which they should desire and demand, because without it they cannot do their full duty to their home and country. Woman suffrage is coming. Every good thing is coming. We do not know when. We can do this and all other reforms into the hopper of the mills of God. Each takes its turn according to natural necessity. One gets through in advance of another, but all will get through at last.—George Cable.

The Social Bard

Is there an hour of the day which can be made so social and cheery as the hour wherein the strollers are gathered home for supper? Home comes the weary breadwinner, to forget his cares about the door of family board. His flock of crafty scheming drops from him here, as the sheath from a tulip when the bloom of home has struck. And can remember how has struck, under the soothing marker fluctuations under the soothing influence of home work and eat? Who can responsibility as set forth in cuss a it? Who can doubt? What tears that flow for nothing deeper than pocket troubles can fail to be assuaged in the presence of broiled chicken done to a turn? Don't let us have any company elegance either, which cannot be made use of in these pleasant home gatherings. No chin on top sirloin, no best linen fold laid away in lavender scented drawers, are too good for daily use. Let us have instead as for daily use. Let us have instead as worthy, the best ye any guest might be. And are not your children de evening the finest you could set before a king? Who can doubt? Who can doubt? Who can doubt

THE THEATER LOCALLY.

Word About Rose Coghlan's Appearance Here.

Robert Mantell Will Show Toledoans What He Can Do With Hamlet—Other Coming Attractions.

This season Miss Rose Coghlan is under her own management. For the past few years her tours have been under the direction of Augustus Pitou. Last May her contract with Mr. Pitou expired, and she wisely determined to undertake the responsibilities of management herself. Miss Coghlan's season commenced August 4 at the Park theater, New York, where she played an engagement of four weeks, presenting for the first time on any stage a new comedy entitled Dorothy's Dilemma, in which she is to appear at Wheeler's opera house, Monday evening. Miss Coghlan has for many years been regarded as a leading actress. Her 10 years' connection with Lester Wallack's stock company is a matter of dramatic history. It was frequently a matter of comment among her friends that she did not embark upon a dramatic career in the line of starring sooner, but she is fond of domestic life and for this reason she remained so long as a stock actress. Finally, one morning, she awoke with the determination of following in the footsteps of the successful female stars, and at the close of her engagement with Mr. Wallack she made arrangements to engage a company and star in legitimate comedies, with which she was so long identified in New York. The result of her undertaking has kept her constantly before the public for seven years, and she is now one of the most successful and popular stars on the road. In her new play Miss Coghlan proposes to show the public that she has other accomplishments than those of a strictly histrionic kind, as she will appear in a scene in this comedy, riding a horse mar fashion, as a scene in the piece requires her to don the uniform of a British officer. The comedy is full of laughable situations, and has been most favorably commented upon wherever it has been played. Miss Coghlan's Peg Woffington is still fresh in the minds of the Toledo public, and she will doubtless be greeted by a large and friendly audience on Monday next, as she certainly deserves.

ROSE COGHLAN.

One of the Bravest Next Week.

Next week Charles McCarthy and a strong company will appear at the People's in the celebrated melo-drama, One of the Bravest, a play that has been presented here on former occasions to appreciative audiences.

Wm. Cronin is still with the company and making a bit nightly as Mrs. Grogan. Mr. McCarthy himself is a great favorite in Toledo and he is sure to do a big business. The singing specialties and scenic effects are all excellent. The fire scene in the second act, with engine, horses, etc., is very realistic.

Robert Mantell Coming.

Robert Mantell will be the attraction at Wheeler's opera house Friday and Saturday evenings, October 16 and 17, and Saturday matinee. Friday night he will appear in the Corsican Brothers, a piece that, played by him, made such an impression here last year. Saturday night Toledoans will have an opportunity of witnessing Mr. Mantell in Hamlet. There should be considerable curiosity as to how Mantell will appear in this role, the standard of which has been raised so high by the eminent actors that have appeared and become famous in it. Saturday afternoon a double bill will be presented, The Lonesome Man, and A Lesson in Acting. The three performances will rank with the dramatic treats of the local season.

ROBERT MANTELL.

The Play That Makes Tom Laugh.

Russell's Comedians, a coterie of eminent farceurs that has attained a national reputation as being one of the foremost organizations of its kind, will be seen for the first time in this city at Wheeler's opera house next Tuesday night in the presentation of their famous success, the City Directory.

This production is entirely unlike any of the days of old-time facial comedies, being original in conception, novel in conception, and in all things out of the usual run. The play in its entirety constitutes a continuous volley of laughable situations. The City Directory comes here with the indorsement of New York for 250 nights, Chicago 100 nights, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco 100 nights each. Of the piece the New York World says:

Last night witnessed the 150th performance of Russell's Comedians in The City Directory at the Bijou, and, judging by the vociferous laughter and enthusiastic applause accorded it by the enormous attendance, it is questionable if this talented coterie of artists and their excruciatingly humorous vehicle for their accomplishments, could not—brook like—ripple on forever at the same house.

Don't read! Don't think! Don't believe! Now, are you better? You women who think that patent medicines are a humbug, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the biggest humbug of the whole (because it's best known of all)—does your lack of faith cure come?

It is very easy to "don't" in this world. Suspicion always comes more easily than confidence. But doubt—little faith—never made a sick woman well—and the "Favorite Prescription" has cured thousands of delicate, weak women, which makes us think that our "Prescription" is better than your "don't believe." Why not both honest. Let us come together. You try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If it doesn't do as represented, you get your money again.

Little but active—are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Best Liver Pills made; gentle, yet thorough. They regulate and invigorate the liver, stomach and bowels.

MONUMENT TO PARNELL.

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—Initial measures are about to be taken in this city to raise funds for a suitable monument to Parnell.

A sore throat or cough, if suffered to progress, often results in an incurable throat of lung trouble. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give instant relief.

Driven from home —dirt by Pearline. It cleans it away gently but thoroughly, easily but safely. Nothing that needs washing is too good for it; nothing that can be washed can be hurt by it. Pearline saves work. Use it once and you will never do without it; you will never do without it, half that you can with it.

Send it Back

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 288 JAMES PYLE, New York.

MALARIA

Literally means bad air. Poisonous germs arising from low, marshy land, or from decaying vegetable matter, are breathed into the lungs, taken up by the blood, and unless the vital fluid is purified by the use of a good medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, the full measure of health is soon overpowered. Even in the more advanced cases, where the terrible fever prevails, this success ful medicine has effected remarkable cures. Those who are exposed to malarial or other poisons should keep the blood pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

OUR ANNUAL HOLIDAY

Announcement—Let Our Friends Read and Heed.

In the grand cycle of Time it again becomes our duty and pleasure to call the attention of our friends to the approaching "Holiday Season" and to notify them of our readiness to receive orders for large crayon and portrait work.

As you all know, it takes from three to four weeks to finish up all the details of a large portrait, and every season since we've been in business we have been compelled to refuse orders for this class of work because delayed too long in placing. We desire to avoid this if possible, and therefore urge our friends to protect themselves against possible disappointment arising from delay, by placing their orders with us early, thereby insuring us plenty of time to make any little correction or change in the work which your good judgment and intimate acquaintance with the subject may suggest.

We aim to give absolute and complete satisfaction in all our work, and only ask your co-operation.

Please bear in mind that we can take only a limited number of orders for large work.

Yours respectfully,
VAN LOO & TROST,
328 Summit street.

That Awful Disease.

PETERSBURG, IND., Aug. 8, 1890.

Dr Bergen, City:

DEAR SIR—I have been a victim to that awful disease known as asthma, all my life, and very often I would be down with it—not able to be out of the house—and have tried everything I could hear of, but they never did me much if any good. I was finally persuaded to try your Cure. So, after taking a few bottles of it, I was entirely free from asthma and have not had any since and don't feel that I ever will. I always keep a bottle on hand, but don't think I will ever have occasion to use it. I can cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers of asthma. Believe me your true friend,
